TRADE PACTS LAID BEFORE BRITISH HOUSE

Every Seat on Commons Floor and in Galleries Occupied During Address.

Mr. Chamberlain Moves Resolutions

Liberal Members Decide to Fight Bills Based on Ottawa Agreements

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 18.—Seats were at a premium in Commons as the House assembled this afternoon. After an hour of tabling of private notices and supplementary questions, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, rose to move the resolutions preceding the bills giving legislative effect to the Ottawa Conference agreements.

The benches were packed. Members flowed over into the side galleries and some stood at the bar of the House.

Mr. Chamberlain opened his remarks with a brief review of world conditions of distress which had struck "even countries like the United States." He held any country which was able first to put its foot on firmer ground, to lift itself from the slough, would similarly help others to recover. "If this be true of a country it is more than true of a group of countries," he continued.

And it was that with the United Kingdom and the British Empire, if the Ottawa Conference resulted in an increase in the prosperity of the British Empire it would be making a contribution to world increased prosperity throughout the world.

The Chancellor repeated the statement he made at the Conservative Party meeting recently at Blackpool: "The ties of the Empire have been wearing dangerously thin." He illustrated that statement by citing "the troubles of India."

POSITION OF CANADA

"Canada had become to a great extent dependent on United States finance and in the absence of any preferential arrangement with the United Kingdom she might have found it extremely difficult to refuse a new offer of reciprocity from her great neighbor to the south which would definitely link their fortunes together to such an extent as would cause a divergence between Canada and Great Britain," declared Mr. Chamberlain. He declared the treaty which South Africa had made with Germany had caused "great anxiety" in Britain. Under it any preferences which South Africa had granted to the United Kingdom would go automatically to Germany also, he said.

FIRST TEST

The first test that must be applied to the Ottawa agreements was as to what would be their effect on the future course of Imperial relations. "The conference," replied Mr. Chamberlain to his own question, "resulted in a better understanding all around and in the determination to continue" (Turn to Page 3, Col. 2)

Doukhobor Women Prisoners Complain

Doukhobor women prisoners, housed in tents near Nelson have complained of the cold nights, and demand to be moved to the warmer quarters. Provincial police are expecting word daily from Col. Cooper, warden of New Westminster penitentiary, fixing a date for transfer of the remaining women prisoners from mainland points to Pier Island. About 100 of the women are in the Nelson district.

Britain Abrogates 1930 Commercial Treaty; Russia Assured More Trade Wanted

Canadian Press

London, Oct. 18.—Mr. H. J. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, to-day announced in the Commons that Great Britain had abrogated its commercial treaty with Soviet Russia.

Under Article 21 of the tariff agreement reached at the recent Ottawa Imperial Conference, he said, renunciation of the temporary commercial agreement with Russia was made necessary. This agreement was signed in April, 1930. It gave Russia the privileges of a favored nation treatment and, therefore, Mr. Thomas explained, it (Turn to Page 2, Col. 6)

SNOW IN UTAH

Salt Lake City, Oct. 18.—The first snow of the season covered Utah and surrounding states to-day. The snow measured as deep as six inches in some parts of the state. Airport officials said the air mail east was delayed by the storm, which began as rain and turned into a driving snow.

King Scores Tariff Increases Based On Ottawa Agreements

Tells Commons Liberals, Immediately After Being Returned to Power in Next Election, Will Restore Tariff to 1930 Liberal Level

Heaps Says Ottawa Pacts Mistake; Stevens Supports Policies Embodied in Treaties

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—With the words of Mr. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King still ringing in its ears, the Commons settled down to-day for a long debate on the scheme of trade contemplated in the treaties negotiated at the Imperial Economic Conference recently held here. Parliament has the assurance of Mr. King that the tariff will go back to the level of the Dunning budget of 1930, when the Liberals returned to power.

The Liberals will be willing, he says, to grant Great Britain a tariff preference averaging 50 per cent where Canadian ports are used.

In his speech yesterday afternoon and evening which occupied three and a half hours, Mr. King condemned the Ottawa agreements as wrong in principle and in detail, as a menace to world peace and good will, and as a danger to Canada's trade with foreign countries and a further application of the vicious policy of high protection.

WORK SOON FOR LIBERALS With a confident tone in his voice, Mr. King predicted the Liberal Party before long would take up the task of promoting international goodwill where the Conservative Party had failed. To restore the tariff to the 1930 level would be its first act.

For the period ended October 14, 1932, gross revenues were $3,085,581 as compared with $3,059,687 for the same period of 1931.

RAIL BILL IN SENATE

COLD WAVE ON PRAIRIES

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Oct. 18.—Several thousand unemployed began marching from various sections of the city to-day toward Parliament Buildings, where the Commons was starting its session. Police prohibited them from approaching Whitehall during the sitting, but permitted them to mass in front of the London County Council Hall, across Westminster Bridge from the Parliament Buildings.

The march, staged as a demonstration in support of a demand for additional unemployment relief, was well organized. The crowd was orderly and police escorted each contingent.

RIOT IN SCOTLAND At Paisley, in Scotland, there was a less peaceful demonstration. A crowd of 2,000 charged the courthouse, where six men were on trial for unemployment disorders. Two men were hurt when police dispersed the mob with clubs.

ILLINOIS BOMB PLOT REPORTED

Canadian Press

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 18.—A reported plot to bomb the temporary barracks of the Illinois National Guardsmen on duty in strike-torn Christian County was being investigated to-day by officers of the 19th Infantry.

Capt. Harry L. Bolden, regimental intelligence officer, said a signed statement had been obtained in which the informant declared he had overheard two men say plans for the bombing had been made.

Another Revolt Is Expected In Siam

Enmity Between Army and Navy May Cause Trouble, Says Dr. John Redfield

New Constitution Being Framed, But People's Party Is Restless

Another revolt is imminent in Siam, in the opinion of Dr. John R. Redfield, former inspector general of the Siamese Government health department, who reached Victoria to-day from Bangkok. He was a passenger aboard the liner President Cleveland which docked from the Far East.

Dr. Redfield was an eye-witness of the one-day revolution in Siam and is a personal friend of General Phya Singha Seni, who was the only victim of the uprising. The general was seriously wounded, but has since recovered.

"I look for further serious trouble in Siam at any time," said Dr. Redfield when questioned about the political situation there.

Some measure of constitutional government was promised by King Prajadhipok, who anticipated the trouble, but he was over-ruled by the Council of Princes.

SHOCK NEAR THE OLD PROVIDENCE MINE

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Oct. 18.—Mining from a shack near the old Providence Mine on Harrison Lake, which is believed to be occupied, John M. McRae, aged sixty, prospector, was being sought to-day by provincial police.

Mr. McRae, formerly a resident of Harrison Mills, obtained a free miner's license September 6 and left for Harrison Lake after saying he intended to prospect in the vicinity of the old Providence Mine.

Some Indians visited a shack near the mine about two weeks ago and found there a shotgun and state food, belonging, it is thought, to Mr. McRae. The prospector was missing.

Constable Don Stewart of Agassiz reported the matter to the provincial police in Vancouver.

A search party will probably be organized to look for McRae.

POUND LOSES ON EXCHANGE

Canadian Press

New York, Oct. 18.—Weakness of the British pound was accompanied by general unsettlement in the foreign exchange market here to-day.

Selling of sterling was said to have originated largely in England in the absence of any readily apparent reason for the drop. It was said in banking quarters the Bank of England had apparently withdrawn support from the pound temporarily, just as it did last July when the quotation dropped sharply.

Sterling cables opened at $3.42 1/2, off a cent, but the rate thereafter extended its dip to about three cents.

European gold currencies turned reactionary. French francs losing nearly a point at the opening of the market. Swiss and Dutch monies also were lower.

The Canadian dollar, recently strong, lost a fractional part of a cent.

Assessment Action, If Successful, Would Force Change in Act, Says Mayor

If the appeal on behalf of the owners of St. Louis College against its assessment is successful all the municipalities in the province will have to seek revision of the assessment laws, Mayor Leeming told the City Council yesterday evening.

The city will fight the court action to be instituted by C. H. O'Halloran, on behalf of the owners, appealing against the decision of the court of revision in refusing to cut the assessment of the building and property to be fixed at $25,000.

Aldermen who spoke to the question were confident the city would win out in the court action, with the exception of Alderman R. T. Williams, who said the council was usually unsuccessful in cases of this kind.

Trucks With Non-perishable Goods Banned in St. Paul-Minneapolis Areas

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 18.—A general tightening of farmers' picket lines around the Minneapolis and St. Paul areas went into effect to-day.

While many trucks had been turned back heretofore on highways in Washington, Anoka and Scott Counties, surrounding the Twin Cities, others had been permitted to get through with warnings not to repeat. But word went out to-day from several sections that no trucks with non-perishable farm produce should pass.

On Highway No. 3, north of Minneapolis, to-day fifteen trucks had been turned back.

BIG SEATTLE LIQUOR RAID

Three Men Arrested and 4,000 Gallons of Alcohol Seized Near City

Associated Press

Seattle, Oct. 18.—The second huge sheriff's liquor raid in little more than twenty-four hours resulted in the seizure to-day of 4,000 gallons of alcohol and the arrest of three men at the little community of Thomas, near here.

The alcohol, valued at $32,000, was found in a freight car, as was a seizure of $35,000 worth of imported whisky in the Northern Pacific freight yards in the south end of Seattle yesterday.

The men were arrested as they drove up to the car. They gave their names as Henry Johnson, forty; Jack Harris, twenty-nine; both of Seattle, and Joe Miller, forty, a transient.

Both liquor shipments arrived from California. The alcohol was in five-gallon cans, concealed behind a layer of sugar beet pulp.

Sheriff Claud Bannick said the whisky car was exchanged for one which started somewhere along the route from Los Angeles loaded with gypsum.

The men arrested yesterday gave their names as Harold Anderson, thirty-two; Leonard Spencer, twenty-six; and Arthur Turner, forty-two, and Fred Martin, twenty-eight.

Chief of Police Frank M. Imhoff received information about the alcohol shipment soon after it had arrived at Thomas yesterday. Bannick said "tips" resulting in the seizures were probably the result of rivalry between bootleggers.

Details of Uprising Among Convicts in Prison in Ontario as Reported By Acting Warden Will Be Basis of Discussion By Commons

Ringleaders Now In "Solitary"

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—A statement on the rioting at the Portsmouth Penitentiary, near Kingston, yesterday, is expected to be made by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, in the Commons this afternoon.

The report of the acting warden at Portsmouth, Gilbert Smith, was placed in the hands of the minister before 3 o'clock, it was stated. The report, it was learned, was directly along the lines of the interview with Mr. Guthrie sent out by the Canadian Press yesterday evening.

The information given by the Minister was in conformity with that furnished him over the long distance telephone from Kingston.

By JACK HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Kingston, Oct. 18.—Grey old Portsmouth Penitentiary, largest of Canada's chain of penal institutions, to-day had survived the most menacing uprising in its history with not a serious casualty to mark the dramatic chapter.

Federal government machinery already was in motion to inquire into the cause of the sudden riot within the stone walls of the prison yesterday afternoon that brought a detachment of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, 100 strong, within the prison before the rioting broke out. The information given by the Minister was in conformity with that furnished him over the long distance telephone from Kingston.

THREAT OF FIRE For more than three hours the anarchy of the rioters resounded through the prison courtyard as the convicts, in possession of the blacksmith, set-cutting and tailor shops, threatened to set fire to those quarters until warning shots from the military detachments brought them to their senses.

While reports were conflicting, the official statement on the insurrection stated only ten shots had been fired before the rioters capitulated.

One convict was injured slightly when a piece of stone fell on his hand, while another suffered a fracture of one rib in a scuffle with one of the guards.

Just how much damage was caused during the rioting is unknown, but official reports indicated there had been considerable destruction in the prison shops.

PRISONERS' DEMANDS While the full details of the causes which led to the disturbance have not yet been revealed, it is believed the outbreak had its genesis in demands by the convicts for cigarette papers, tobacco and increased recreational privileges.

ATTITUDE PROVOKES RETALIATION
 Charging Premier Bennett with adopting a provocative attitude in connection with the agreements, Mr. King said no self-respecting Liberal could vote for a measure which was based on the protective policy the Liberal Party had opposed both inside and out of office, and which the Prime Minister described as based on the policy of the Conservative Party at the last election.

LINES CLEARLY DRAWN
 Following Mr. King's speech and those also delivered yesterday evening by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and A. A. Heape, Labor, North Winnipeg, it is evident Premier Bennett's attitude has little support for the agreements outside the ranks of his own party. The issue is clearly drawn, and Liberals, Laborites and Farmers are now being asked to support the agreements or to oppose them.

The agreements would not endure, said A. A. Heape. If ratified they would not last beyond their five-year term because they were of a purely party character.

Fighting challenges flew back and forth across the House as the debate began. Mr. King declared such sweeping tariff changes should not be undertaken without consulting the people. Attempts to make the empire a tariff-bound economic unit were denounced by Mr. King. The government of Canada had failed in a great opportunity at the conference. Instead of leading the way to a removal of world trade barriers, a menace to world peace, it had made that removal more difficult. Foreign nations were already talking of retaliation.

ORIGIN OF PREFERENCE
 Opening his speech, Mr. King said the British preference originated in the Canadian Parliament under the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1897. The 1897 resolution provided that goods entering Canada from Great Britain should come in at a rate of 12 1/2 per cent lower than the general tariff. This preference was increased to 25 per cent subsequently and in 1900, said Mr. King, to 35 per cent.

Changes in the British preference, stated Mr. King, had been made since that year generally by way of increasing the preference. The last important change was made in 1925, when the Imperial Conference agreed, by the Liberal government through the Dunnington budget in 1926, which budget made provision for considerable increases in the British preference.

The Liberal government also had granted a 10 per cent discount on goods coming into Canada under the British preference through Canadian ports, declared Mr. King. As 99 per cent of goods coming into this country from Great Britain were entering through Canadian ports, he said, this was equivalent to a further increase. "We were the originators of the British preference," said Mr. King. "We have maintained it against honorable gentlemen opposite."

DIFFERENCE SEEN
 The government leader in his speech on the Imperial Conference last week had conveyed the impression that he (Mr. Bennett) had accomplished something Sir Wilfrid Laurier had not done, said Mr. King. What Sir Wilfrid had asked at the Imperial Conference referred to by Mr. Bennett was to have removed or reduced as against Canada a duty which Great Britain had imposed on wheat in order to meet certain obligations arising out of the South African War. At the 1930 Imperial Conference, Mr. Bennett had not asked for the removal or reduction of duties by Great Britain, but that "Great Britain should change her fiscal policy and impose duties in order that a preference might be granted. That is a different matter from asking for a removal or reducing of duties."

TARIFF FOR REVENUE
 "The Liberal party has always advocated free trade," Mr. King declared, "and when we have had to resort to tariffs they have been for revenue only, never for protection." The conference, he said, was the Prime Minister at the 1930 conference was entirely without precedent, Mr. King said.

It had not only been the view of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but of every prime minister of Canada with the exception of Mr. Bennett, that Canada would never seek to force the Mother Country to alter her policy.

FOR BRITISH DECISION
 In 1923 Mr. King, then Prime Minister of Canada, attended an Imperial Economic Conference in London. "We were asked," Mr. King said, "if we desired to have preferences in the British market granted by means of an increase in the general tariff. Our reply was that while we would appreciate any preference the Mother Country might grant, it was a matter entirely for Great Britain to decide."

Mr. King declared that day had told Great Britain, Mr. King proceeded, that the preferences granted by Canada were for the benefit of that country, primarily, and that no demand would be made for British taxes on food in order to repay Canada for what it had done.

"What we did was for Canada," declared Mr. King, "and that is what the present government seems to lose sight of."

For Canada the benefit was for the consumer, to keep down the cost of living and also lower the costs of production.

TWO-WAY TRADE
 It must be apparent, continued Mr. King, that no country could trade in one direction only. Sooner or later exports must be paid for by imports. That doctrine, he commented, had recently been subscribed to by the Prime Minister himself. If that was true with respect to Great Britain, it would be true with respect to Canada and other parts of the world.

PEOPLE NOT CONSULTED
 Reverting to the 1923 negotiations, Mr. King recalled Canada had given the United Kingdom Government a list of commodities which it would like to see the special advantage of Canada to place a preference. It had been represented to the Imperial Conference of that year that the United Kingdom intended submitting to Parliament a programme of duties on these very commodities. The preferences of 1923 were a duplicate, he said, of those of 1923.

TRADE PACTS LAD BEFORE BRITISH HOUSE

the task begun at Ottawa, the delegates returned with a sense of new strength and greater security, a new note of hope and confidence was struck. The helm of the ship was put over and the vessels of the Empire were directed to a common course.

"Under the conference agreements, India, for the first time, recognized the principle of Imperial preference, Canada and Australia have given up the idea that their home markets should be entirely preserved for their home manufacturers," he said. "This alone is of the utmost importance to the United Kingdom as they have agreed not to protect uneconomic industries, and to so adjust the tariffs as to give the British manufacturer a fair competitive chance."

Investigation as to what principle would be applied to Canada and Australia was to be taken entirely out of politics and entrusted to impartial tariff commissions, he said. "That change of policy on the part of those two great Dominions has enormous possibilities for a future increase in British trade. That change of policy if we had not been able to bring back anything else, would have justified our efforts."

SOVIET TRADE
 The Chancellor stressed that in pursuance of the terms of the Anglo-Canadian agreements the government of the United Kingdom had taken steps to renounce the British trade agreement with Russia. The Union of South Africa had also taken steps to free itself from the obligation of the treaty it had signed with Germany. Under the Ottawa agreements the whole empire, colonies as well as Dominions, was for the first time brought into negotiations, he concluded. The debate is expected to consume three days.

London, Oct. 18.—Liberal members of the Commons, meeting before Parliament assembled this afternoon, decided strenuously to oppose passage of legislation necessary to ratify the Imperial Conference trade agreements. The party established a committee to consider detailed amendments which will be presented to the House.

Sir Herbert Samuel, former Home Secretary, presided over the meeting. His action resigning from the cabinet in protest against the tariff policies resulting from the conference was unanimously endorsed by the party.

CORPORAL OF R.C.M.P. BURIED

Military Honors at Fort Simpson For Late J. Halliday, Killed By Rifle Discharge

Fort Simpson, N.W.T., Oct. 18.—Military honors were accorded yesterday when the funeral of the late Corporal J. Halliday of the R.C.M.P. was held here. The body of the late Corporal was brought to Fort Simpson by a loaded rifle in the police schooner Winnipeg while the craft was rushing back to Fort Simpson ahead of the coming winter's first bluish ice.

J. Antoine, pilot of the Winnipeg, narrowly escaped death in the same accident, powder burns being left on his face as a result of the rifle discharge.

The Winnipeg was drawing a fish scow, with Corporal Halliday in charge, when the accident occurred.

The men had been at Great Slave Lake to get their winter's fish supply and were returning to Simpson. While they were still ten miles above here Corporal Halliday started to get his things together. While he was carrying a rifle down the steps into the cabin he discharged it.

The funeral was held at the Anglican Church in Fort Simpson, with members of the R.C.M.P. and Royal Canadian Corps of Signals attending in uniform. Three members of each unit acted as pallbearers.

The entire population of Fort Simpson, Indians and white persons alike, was present.

Another Revolt Is Expected in Siam

The People's Party is now in the ascendant and strong pressure for constitutional rights is being brought to bear upon the former absolutist dynasty.

DRAFT IN PROGRESS
 King Prajadhipok, ignoring the prices, has since named a committee of high officials of the army, navy and air force to draft a constitution which might be favorable to the people.

The drafting of this constitution is now in progress, said Dr. Redfield. "But there is great enmity between the army and navy and the fire was smoldering when I left Bangkok."

Whether King Prajadhipok and his government will survive another assault by the people, the health inspector of Siam was not prepared to say. The outstanding figure of the revolution is Col. Phya Bhoj, an officer of the Siamese army. The revolution was secretly carried out and Prince Nharavarga and all the major princes were confined to the palace.

TANKS USED
 Army tanks patrolled the streets of Bangkok and machine guns were used by the revolutionists. It all happened so quickly that the great majority of the Siamese people were unaware that an uprising was in progress.

King Prajadhipok, says Dr. Redfield, is inclined to favor constitutional government but has met with much opposition in high official circles. The Council of Princes have been virtually in control of the government of Siam.

Victorians will remember that last summer when the Siamese monarch went to New York to have a catarrh removed from his eye.

SVASTI MAY RETURN
 Dr. Redfield says Prince Svasti, who was also here last year, is popular in Siam. Prince Svasti told Dr. Redfield that he would like to pay another visit to Canada and the United States.

Dr. Redfield is a native of Camden, N.J., and is now en route to San Diego with his family. He plans to return to Siam to engage in private practice.

COW-GIRL GETS A STEER

In the meantime General Ormond, superintendent of the penitentiaries branch of the department, was still in Ottawa pending instructions. General Ormond was to have left for Kingston this morning.

PRISONER'S STORY
 Windsor, Ont., Oct. 18.—The outbreak yesterday in the Portsmouth Penitentiary, near Kingston, had been contemplated for some time, according to a statement made to-day to The Border Cities Star by Prisoner Number 1809, who was released from the institution yesterday.

Trouble broke about 8.30 yesterday morning, according to this man, who was just ready for discharge and was put on a train at noon by penitentiary officials.

U.S. President Will Speak in That City Saturday; Roosevelt Starts Mid-Western-Southern Tour

New York, Oct. 18.—Pitch in the political battle for a doubtful Middle West was on the United States election campaign cards to-day.

President Herbert Hoover announced he would speak Saturday at Detroit, hub of Michigan's industrial sector, where depression has made serious inroads in employment and retail work has strained private and public resources. Henry Ford will do his turn on the platform to help his friend.

The Ford Motor Company was out to-day with a circular to its thousands of employees telling them a Hoover defeat in the November 8 balloting would be bad for the country. Big business is generally looked on as against Governor Franklin Roosevelt, Democratic nominee and a Liberal.

MRS. EDISON SPEAKS
 Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, widow of the inventor and business chieftain, said: "I feel it would be a pity if Mr. Hoover were not returned to the White House." She will speak publicly along that line Wednesday.

At Albany, Governor Roosevelt packed his campaign baggage again, this time for an eight-day trip to mid-western and southern states. It was indicated he might show his hand during the tour on the question of the proposed soldier bonus—a question Republicans say he has straddled.

Mr. Hoover earlier declared himself dead against the bonus, holding it might lead to the necessity of "flat money"—inflation, in harsher words.

KAISERITES ARE TALKING

Berlin, Oct. 18.—A clarification call for restoration of the Hohenzollerns was sounded yesterday evening at the Singakademie at a "resurrection" meeting of the "Upright," which convened for a session after Foreign Minister Walter Rathenau had been murdered.

The former Crown Prince sent his greetings, as did the Kaiser, in a message from Doorn, cited Christ's saying, "Without Me ye can do nothing."

MURDER ATTEMPT Charge Is Made
 Toronto, Oct. 18.—On remand and out on bail on a charge of housebreaking in East York, Walter Morrison, thirty-five, married and father of five children, was arrested to-day on a charge of attempted murder.

Morrison, police say, confessed he was the man who entered the home of Mrs. Dorothy Bradbury on Monarch Park Avenue some weeks ago and struck her over the head with an axe. Morrison told police his intention was robbery, but the woman awoke and he struck her in order to make his escape.

GETS BUCK WITH BOW AND ARROW

Tacoma, Oct. 18.—When S. L. Michael and George Robinson of Tacoma go deer hunting they leave their bows behind and arm themselves with guns and arrows.

Yesterday they returned from a hunting trip in the Lake Christine district with a 225-pound buck as evidence of Michael's skill with the weapons of the primitive Indians. From a distance of thirty yards Michael shot an arrow twenty inches into the buck's body.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Oct. 18.—Conditions were so much improved following the unemployed riots of last week that authorities decided to-day to suspend the emergency curfew law.

Prison Riot Commons Debate Topic

leges. A radio for the main corridor of the prison and outdoor recreation in the outer court are said to have been included in the demands. When their requests were not complied with the trouble began.

MUCH "YAMMERING"
 For nearly a week officials of the prison had heard rumblings of discontent. The riot did not materialize yesterday, but the disturbance carefully planned it for an expected visit by Gen. Ormond, superintendent of penitentiaries, but unaware of the fact the ringleaders gave the signal which let loose a bedlam of "yammering" and screaming.

The taking shop group was the first to swing into action. Cossacks started the howling and disorder. Acting Warden Gilbert Smith, fearful of a riot, ordered the inmates to get full quota of 900-odd inmates within the prison walls. At the first sign of organized disorder, the warden rushed to the scene and ordered the heavy rioting doors of the workshops locked.

The rioters promptly seized Mr. Smith and used an acetylene torch which they had obtained from a nearby blacksmith shop, to cut through the metal. The locks were forced and all the prisoners reached the inner courtyard.

CALL FOR TROOPS
 Prison officials tried to reason with the unruly inmates, stressing the futility of a riot. The rioting was unheeded and as the rioters became more menacing an emergency call was sent for a detachment of troops.

Meanwhile the prisoners massed in the mail bag department carried huge boulders and machinery to the doors and barricaded themselves inside the building.

Eventually the warden and a deputy who had been captured were released. They brought back word that the commodities threatened to set fire to the buildings if troops were summoned.

TIM BUCK THERE
 From an authoritative source The Canadian Press learned that Tim Buck, former leader of the Communist Party in Canada, was among the agitators of the disturbances. Buck was sentenced in Toronto to five years' imprisonment for being a member of an unlawful assembly—the Communist Party of Canada.

Following the arrival of the military detachment the outbreak was quickly quelled. Trucks were loaded with stones, backed against the barred doors and the barricade which protected the inmates confined against the authorities appealed to the rioters to return peacefully to their cells, but the request brought only a massed response of jeering.

As a warning, several shots were fired into the air. That brought about the first definite break in the ranks of the prisoners. Six hundred men employed in the tailor shop and other sections of the jail were the first to surrender, reluctantly filing to their quarters.

Officials gave the remaining 300 fifteen minutes to "get started." The prisoners made no move. More shots were directed over the heads of the rioters and the slowly the rebels began their march toward their cells. Suddenly they halted. Once more the guards brought their guns into play, firing on the rioting in front of the jeering group. The march continued.

In a few minutes the troops left a quiet prison, the convicts safely in their cells and the trouble past.

GUN BARREL DROPS; Shot Kills Youth
 Portland, Oct. 18.—Bert Whalen, seventeen, of Portland, was fatally wounded yesterday when a bullet was discharged from a dismantled gun and penetrated his right side.

Whalen had taken the rifle apart and was carrying it in two pieces. Police said witnesses told them the youth dropped the gun barrel, and it still contained a cartridge, which exploded when the piece hit the ground.

British M.P.'s Told Valera For Republic

Dominions Secretary Makes Report to Commons on Recent Irish-British Discussion in London

London, Oct. 18.—Mr. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, told the Commons to-day that during the recent Anglo-Irish discussions here President de Valera of the Free State had maintained the only real and permanent solution of the Irish difficulty would be a united Irish Republic governed by the British Empire.

Mr. Thomas said Mr. de Valera had conceded the all-Ireland government should have some sort of connection with the British Empire.

The Dominions Secretary said the Irish Free State delegation, in stating its case, had set forth allegations of over-taxation in Ireland under the Act of Union and charged an unspecified loss was sustained by the Irish in consequence of Great Britain's departure from the gold standard.

"It was obvious," added Mr. Thomas, "from the two days' discussion that the Free State representatives had no intention either of admitting the validity or the justice of the Anglo-Irish treaty."

stood in the way of trade prohibitions which might be necessitated by the obligations undertaken at Ottawa.

ANXIOUS TO TRADE
 In notifying the Russian charge d'affaires here Great Britain was serving six months' notice of abrogation in accordance with the pact. The Soviet authorities were informed Great Britain still was anxious to increase its trade with Russia and was ready to enter into discussions with that object in view at the earliest possible time.

Article 21 of the Ottawa agreement, stipulated the whole arrangement with the Dominions is based on the express condition that if either party "is satisfied that any preferences granted on any particular class of commodities are likely to be frustrated by reason of maintenance of prices for such commodities through state action on the part of a foreign country," that government will exercise the powers it has to "prohibit the entry from such foreign country of such commodities for such time as may be necessary to maintain the preferences" granted at Ottawa.

NEW RULES URGED
 The delegates of Canada and Australia were particularly concerned during the negotiations at Ottawa that the British government should adopt effective means to prevent resumption of Russian dumping in the wheat market.

The government benches cheered when Mr. Thomas to-day declared the government, having undertaken an obligation to give preferences within the British Commonwealth, must take all steps necessary to see that "no country shall frustrate this obligation by dumping swamped goods in Great Britain."

NATURE OF TRUTH
 "One of the epigrams of the late Elbert Hubbard was: 'Society is very tolerant; it forgives everything but the truth.' By society is meant the few who control the many. The function in society of the latter is to serve and obey the former."

Continuing, the judgment read: "The bench must not speak its (the truth) for fear of offending the few before the Crown that may happen to be in power, or the legal hierarchy, or both."

Wing Ching said he witnessed the robbery but had not interfered, being afraid of being shot.

The trial was proceeding this morning.

deny doing so, said the judge. "Two of them admit they carried clubs, but only for the purpose of self-protection, alleging that in a clash with the police on a previous occasion they had been unjustly attacked and beaten by police."

"The accused made serious allegations of physical ill-treatment at the hands of several of the police during and after the arrests. The evidence satisfies me the police used more physical force and violence than was necessary or proper, and that some of it was used for purely punitive purposes."

Port Alberni Home Damaged By Fire While Owner Absent

Special to The Times
Port Alberni, Oct. 18.—Fire at 11 o'clock last night partially destroyed a house recently built by Carl Fredrickson at the corner of Ninth Avenue and North Park Drive, in Calgary suburb. The owner has been down the canal fishing for several days. No one has been living in the house and the origin of the fire remains a mystery. A half empty can of coal oil was found in the kitchen, where the fire started. The fire chief and police are entertaining a theory that a fire bug is to blame. Several mysterious fires have started lately but have been noticed before any serious damage had been done. All were in homes where the owners were absent or at the theatre.

The fundamental difference was this, however, Mr. King continued, that in the election subsequent to 1923 the British people rejected this programme; but in 1932 these protectionist policies were being imposed without their having an opportunity to pass on them.

Before the tariff was changed to one which would impose taxes on food, then the people of Canada and Great Britain should be given an opportunity to express their will on it. No executive had the right to bind in any way a nation without the consent of the people of that nation itself.

FARMERS' VIEWS
Conservative members from rural ridings who took the view that such methods were proper should reflect on the reactions of the Canadian farmers against any move on the part of the government of Great Britain to demand protection against Canadian produce.

The last act of the Liberal administration of 1930 was to make it appear to the people of the United Kingdom that Canada was willing to trade with them by giving them liberal preferences.

At the same time, the government of that day had made it clear to Mr. Baldwin had done in his speech before the recent Imperial Conference, that this must be founded on a basis of mutual interest and goodwill. Application of these principles would go much further than any process of bargaining, Mr. King said.

ON 1930 BASIS
The policy of the Liberal Party with regard to trade was to encourage greater freedom, to remove restrictions and trade barriers, and "if returned to office," said Mr. King, "our objective will be to bring the tariff back to where it was in 1930."

"We will undertake," he declared, "to give the British people, where their trade is imported through Canadian ports, a preference of 50 per cent."

The opposition leader touched on statements made by the Prime Minister with regard to himself and the Liberal Party.

"I do not expect the Prime Minister to be gracious or chivalrous toward myself or the Liberal Party," he observed. He did, however, object to Mr. Bennett's recent statement that "there was nothing Mr. King could do that he had not done to injure the conference before it was held."

REFRAINED FROM DISCUSSION
If any government in the world had ever had a free hand to deal with national affairs, it was that of Mr. Bennett, said the opposition leader. "If there was one contention Mr. King had with his own followers it was that he had refrained from sessions from going up and down the country attacking the government and its policies. The Liberals had sought not to embarrass Mr. Bennett. Prior to the recent conference, Mr. King continued, he had refrained from discussing it, except only when necessary imposed on him the obligation to do so. In the by-election in Royal, New Brunswick, he had mentioned it because the question had been raised there, while in South Huron the government had made it the issue of the election.

Mr. King stated that on several occasions during the summer he had cancelled speaking engagements in various parts of the country because these would have required of him some objection to the conference and he considered it would have been tasteless to criticize the government while the guests of Canada were still in the country.

He had taken the same position in respect to speaking in his own constituency of Prince Albert, proceeded to state that he had endeavored to follow the line of "chivalry and co-operation" so as not to embarrass the government.

From government supporters followed this statement:

NOT IN THEIR VOCABULARY
"Chivalry and co-operation are words which are not in their vocabulary," remarked the opposition leader, "and particularly not in the vocabulary of the right honorable gentleman opposite," he added, referring to the Prime Minister.

The Prime Minister had laid down certain principles in regard to the agreement between Canada and Great Britain, said Mr. King. He had declared that the British government had agreed to support the tariff reduction policy.

"How can we be expected to support these agreements when the Prime Minister has said that they are based on the protective policy," asked the Liberal leader.

"On this side of the house we still believe in greater freedom of trade," said Mr. King. "We are going to support the tariff reduction policy, but we are going to support it on the basis of the principle of the Liberal Party, which is to encourage greater freedom of trade."

What Mr. King said was that the Prime Minister had agreed to support the tariff reduction policy, but he had not agreed to support the tariff reduction policy on the basis of the principle of the Liberal Party, which is to encourage greater freedom of trade.

DAIRY PRODUCTS
Great Britain would raise tariffs against Canadian dairy products within three years, predicted Mr. King. "I ask Conservatives representing rural ridings if you are going to endorse, by your votes, the principle of the British Government placing a duty on dairy products that come from your own country."

LIBERAL AMENDMENT
Mr. King read a proposed amendment to the Premier's Canadian-British trade ratification motion, setting forth the views of the Liberals. He did not actually move the amendment, but asked the Speaker of the House to rule whether or not it was in order.

The Speaker agreed to consider the matter and give his decision later. It is in order, it will be moved by Hon. J. L. Ralston, Liberal member for York-Simcoe, N.S., before the debate on the Prime Minister's motion for approval of the agreement is concluded.

Following is the text of the amendment:

"That all the words after 'that be struck out and that the following words be inserted instead thereof: 'In respect of the trade agreement entered into at Ottawa, August 20, 1932, between representatives of His Majesty's Government in Canada and His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, the House well comes such terms of the agreement as propose the reduction of existing duties as well as those which, in any way tend to increase the possibilities of greater demand for Canadian products.'"

"ON FIRST SALE"
Mr. King read article four of the amendment.

"It is agreed that the duty on either wheat, copper, zinc or lead as provided in this agreement may be removed if at any time producers of wheat in grain, copper, zinc and lead, respectively, are unable or unwilling to offer those commodities on first sale in the United Kingdom at prices not exceeding the world prices and in quantities sufficient to supply the requirements of the United Kingdom consumers."

This country must make "first sale" in the British market. In other words, stated Mr. King, this country would not be able where there was scarcity of other parts of the world to take advantage of the higher prices if they were to enjoy the preferences granted on wheat, copper, zinc and lead.

"No, no," several government members cried out.

"These are the facts," replied Mr. King.

"It is a distortion of the facts," Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, interrupted.

If there was a scarcity in any other part of the world, this country would have to sell these four commodities in Great Britain at European prices, and would not be able to take advantage of the higher prices where the scarcity existed, declared Mr. King.

PROVOCATIVE TARIFFS
"We are being asked to maintain protective high tariffs," he stated.

The principle of protection was repeated in many clauses of the trade agreement with the United Kingdom.

"It would be very much surprised," said Mr. King, "if this Parliament is prepared to surrender altogether the right to arrange a tariff for revenue."

The Tariff Board was being appointed to allow British manufacturers to come over here and appear before it and not for the Canadian consumers and farmers, he stated in referring to a clause in the agreement.

Mr. King said he did not believe the Parliament of Canada would agree to any tariff-board determining what the tariff of this country would be.

"It seems to me the Tariff Board of Canada," said Mr. King, "is to be moved into action not at the instance of Canadians, not at the instance of consumers, who are affected by our tariffs, not at the instance of any class in this country, but at the instance of the government."

"In order to have a government of another part of the empire say when our tariff machinery is to be put into action where it relates to matters pertaining to the Tariff Board."

ENDING OF TREATY
Mr. King asked the Prime Minister if it would be possible for Great Britain and Canada, should they so desire, to terminate the agreement before its expiry? "I think the Prime Minister will say not," he declared. He questioned very much if future governments would agree to such an arrangement. The agreement in the form which it was presented could not be altered, he thought.

"PROTECTION GONE MAD"
Reaching the concluding part of his address, Mr. King branded the pact as "protection gone mad" and calculated to injure, not promote, Empire trade and relations.

The tariff had been raised so high that it had aspersed all classes of people in this country, said Mr. King. Tariff changes had been made frequently and an admission by the government of the instability in tariff which occurred was contained in one of the clauses in the agreement.

CHEERED BY LIBERALS
While his followers shouted their approval before crowded galleries, Mr. King levelled his many-sided criticism at the Canadian-British trade agreement. Its dominant feature, he said, was high protection and increased customs tolls. It would result in placing still greater obstacles before Canada's trade. Once in effect, Canada could not change its own tariff rates for a period of five years, irrespective of conditions, governments or the wishes of the people. It would tend to change the Empire into an economic unit exacting tribute from world traders and losing Canada her position in world markets.

"In arranging the tariff schedules," proceeded Mr. King, "the government has seen fit in many cases to fix the intermediate tariff (applying to foreign countries with which Canada has trade agreements) and the general rate (applying to all other foreign countries) at the same level. What is the significance of that? That procedure adopted to make it impossible for this Parliament successfully to negotiate treaties with other countries by giving those countries any benefits in our markets. It has wiped out the differential between the two rates, and the other protectionist measure of the most possible type."

NO LACK OF PATRIOTISM
In attacking the agreement, there was no lack of patriotism, said the Liberal leader. "So there may be no Lib-eral take as to where we (the Liberals) stand in regard to British trade, we will undertake to give to British people, when they export goods through Canadian ports, the same tariff reduction rate averaging 50 per cent of the general tariff," he said.

"But I ask," Mr. King proceeded, "how can we, who in season and out of season have sought to get the tariff reduced, support this agreement which raises the tariff all along the line?"

Out of 223 tariff changes in the treaty, 90 were increases—and remember, the tariff of this country already is the highest in the world."

Great Britain would raise tariffs against Canadian dairy products within three years, predicted Mr. King. "I ask Conservatives representing rural ridings if you are going to endorse, by your votes, the principle of the British Government placing a duty on dairy products that come from your own country."

This "closing of the door" against Canadian products was inevitable if the treaty went into force, he said.

The Tariff Board was being appointed to allow British manufacturers to come over here and appear before it and not for the Canadian consumers and farmers, he stated in referring to a clause in the agreement.

Mr. King said he did not believe the Parliament of Canada would agree to any tariff-board determining what the tariff of this country would be.

"It seems to me the Tariff Board of Canada," said Mr. King, "is to be moved into action not at the instance of Canadians, not at the instance of consumers, who are affected by our tariffs, not at the instance of any class in this country, but at the instance of the government."

"In order to have a government of another part of the empire say when our tariff machinery is to be put into action where it relates to matters pertaining to the Tariff Board."

ENDING OF TREATY
Mr. King asked the Prime Minister if it would be possible for Great Britain and Canada, should they so desire, to terminate the agreement before its expiry? "I think the Prime Minister will say not," he declared. He questioned very much if future governments would agree to such an arrangement. The agreement in the form which it was presented could not be altered, he thought.

"PROTECTION GONE MAD"
Reaching the concluding part of his address, Mr. King branded the pact as "protection gone mad" and calculated to injure, not promote, Empire trade and relations.

The tariff had been raised so high that it had aspersed all classes of people in this country, said Mr. King. Tariff changes had been made frequently and an admission by the government of the instability in tariff which occurred was contained in one of the clauses in the agreement.

While his followers shouted their

some portion of Canada's $300,000,000 iron and steel business.

All through the agreement, said Mr. Stevens, the tariffs tended to divert trade from foreign countries to Great Britain.

Any doubt as to the attitude of the opposition toward the conference agreements had been cleared away by the address of Mr. King, said the minister. The opposition leader, Mr. Stevens continued, had called the conference "a Tory conspiracy seeking to rivet protection to the Empire."

"Is the Forbes government of New Zealand Tory?" Mr. Stevens asked. And he asked the same of the Lyons government in Australia, the Lyons Free State government, the government of South Africa—and lastly, the government of the United Kingdom.

"Yes," was the chorus from the Liberal ranks to the final question.

"It is a government headed by Ramsay MacDonald—and it is not a Tory government, and it is not a Tory conspiracy," said the Minister of Trade and Commerce.

"We who attended the conference several prominent ministers had success was not attained, but definite steps were taken in the right direction," he said.

"The means world markets, of course," Mr. Stevens declared, "but the inference he (Mr. King) would give you is that Canada and the Dominions, having achieved agreements for trade with one another, had shut themselves out from trade with other countries."

"Of course Canada is striving for world markets—and she will get them," said Mr. Stevens.

OF PARTY CHARACTER
Agreements reached at the Imperial Economic Conference were "purely party in their character and for that reason would not endure, said A. A. Heape, Labor, Winnipeg North.

Already the British National Government had split on the issue of the conference agreements, said Mr. Heape. Several prominent ministers had resigned. The attitude of Mr. King and the Liberal Party in Canada indicated only one party in this country would approve the agreement.

Referring to mention in some of Premier Bennett's speeches to a low standard of living in some of the European countries, Mr. Heape declared that "they should not point the finger of scorn at those countries until we have put our own home in order."

In the Dominion, Mr. Heape argued, there were some 700,000 unemployed. Their standard of living was controlled in that it depended on the amount of relief they were granted by the state.

Mr. Heape concluded by reading a communication from the head of the Amalgamated Mine Workers of Nova Scotia describing living conditions in the Cape Breton mining community of New Aberdeen. The latter said miners were forced to live on thirteen cents a day while "thieves and convicted murderers were allowed from forty-five to ninety cents."

WARM BRITISH DOLE DEBATE

"Means Test" Raises One of Chief Questions of Parliament's Session

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Oct. 18.—As Parliament re-assembled to-day members were again brought sharply face to face with the perennial problem of the dole. The issue turns on the "means test."

When the financial crises of a year ago pushed Great Britain off the gold standard, the unemployment insurance fund, from which benefits are paid, was running into debt at the rate of roughly £1,000,000 a week. By the economy budget, contributions were increased, rates of benefit were reduced and the policy was adopted of the means test.

Now, under the unemployment insurance scheme as amended by the economy budget, payment of ordinary benefits is limited to twenty-six weeks in a benefit year. When that period has expired, the unemployed worker, unless he again qualifies by securing further employment, can claim only what is known as transitional benefit. The cost of transitional benefit is met entirely out of the national exchequer, to secure it, it is not enough for the applicant to be unemployed. He must satisfy a local public assistance committee his case is one of need.

MILION LISTED
There lies the "means test." And it is estimated that at the present time applicant for transitional benefit number approximately 1,000,000.

Not in recent years has anything aroused so much to do as the administration of the means test. Labor meetings have rung with denunciation of the "iniquitous" methods of some public assistance committees. Nor has the criticism been confined to opposition labor. There have been murmurings among government supporters casting a troubled eye towards industrial constituencies. The Conservatives at their annual conference at Blackpool passed a resolution asking further cuts in unemployment insurance and Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin promised an inquiry into the means test.

Unemployment insurance promises again to play a leading part in the deliberations at Westminster.

The parks committee was named by the City Council yesterday evening to report on a petition seeking removal of boulevard trees on Moss Street owing to the danger to gardens from disease originating in the plants.

"A week ago I had dandruff so badly

NOW NOT A TRACE"

"After a bad cold, which kept me in bed nearly three weeks, I began to have trouble with my hair and scalp. My scalp felt itchy. Every time I combed my hair quite a little of it fell out. And I developed a very trying case of dandruff.

"I had never been bothered this way before and naturally was quite alarmed. I tried several expensive treatments, with very little success, and then my husband suggested that I try Listerine. I was pretty skeptical but I decided to do as he suggested. I used it four times.

"You can imagine my delight at the end of a week to find that there wasn't a trace of dandruff and that my scalp no longer itched and burned. I have told other women about it, and they say they too have found it wonderful in keeping the scalp and hair clean and healthy."

This statement is typical of those contained in letters from thousands of people all over the country.

If you are troubled with loose dandruff, give Listerine a trial. We do not claim that it is infallible but in most mild cases it gets quick results. Even severe cases have yielded to it.

Listerine attacks surface infection, removes and dissolves scaly crusts, soothes inflammation and cleans both scalp and hair. Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., Toronto, Ont.

CALLS TO MANKIND FOR A HEART SEARCHING

According to Sir Alfred Ewing, an eminent British scientist, man is ethically unprepared for the bounty which the cornucopia of the engineers has shaken over the earth. As he surveys the scene of plenty, where so many must go hungry, he can only hope that "the prodigal at the wheel can learn to master himself, lest he be crushed by the machine of material progress."

As he surveys the mechanical progress of the world, Sir Alfred evidently is confronted by a sense of perplexity and frustration, as "in one who has gone a long way and finds he has taken the wrong turning." At seventy-seven, president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and "an old exponent of applied mechanics," he is disillusioned "with the sweeping pageant of discovery and invention" in which he himself used to take unbounded delight.

Sir Alfred asks "whether does this tremendous procession tend? What, after all, is its goal? What is the probable influence on the future of the human race?" The engineers have dowered us with "previously unpossessed and unimagined capacities and powers." He agrees, moreover, that many of these gifts are benefits to man, making life fuller, wider, healthier, richer in comforts and interested in such happiness as material things can promote. Then Sir Alfred goes on:

But we are acutely aware that the engineer's gifts have been and may be grievously abused. In some there is potential tragedy as well as present burden.

Man was ethically unprepared for so great a bounty. In the slow evolution of morals he is still unfit for the tremendous responsibility it entails. The command of nature has been put into his hands before he knows how to command himself.

In similar vein, James Truslow Adams, writing in Scribner's Magazine, starts out with a message to Americans by telling them that "as part of the development of character we have got to place a higher value on other things in life than money and standards of living." He visualizes the American scene thus:

In countless homes in America to-day there must be going on a serious questioning of what it is that makes life worth while, and what is really worth striving for. My own opinion is that there are plenty of us who are getting fed up with the philosophy of life of the past decade and with the position which our country occupies, with its crime, its lawlessness, its disgraceful politics, its abandonment of ideals, its loss of prestige and honor abroad and at home.

There is no use in railing at America, or expecting her to take her proper position in the world, unless each of us as citizens makes an effort to make his own life worth while on the basis of values which are not wholly material. The nation can not transcend the level of its citizens.

The experience through which the nations have been going since the bottom fell out of the material world three years ago has produced a good deal of introspective thought apart altogether from a general inquiry as to whether we have not been traveling at too high a speed since the dawn of the present century. The more searching of hearts and souls there is, moreover, the sooner will mankind separate the wheat from the tares of what we are pleased to call modern progress.

DECLINE OF THE "WHITE PLAGUE" IS AN ENCOURAGING SIGN

Tuberculosis is vanishing in the United States—and in Canada, too—and in another five years it will be classed as a minor disease. So, at any rate, says Dr. Gerald R. Webb, of Colorado, in a recent speech before a middle western medical association. Tuberculosis, as Dr. Webb points out, seems to run in cycles of about 100 years, and all indications now point to the belief that the present cycle is on its downward swing.

Modern methods of treating tuberculosis, beyond a doubt, are more effective than those practiced in former generations. Yet it is odd to realize that the prevalence of the disease seems to depend, at least in part, on mysterious forces beyond human control. Just now it is subsiding, but medical science does not pretend to claim all the credit. There is at work, apparently, some factor which we can not yet understand.

BENNETT AND HOOVER IN THE SAME ECONOMIC BOAT

There are many striking points of similarity between Premier Bennett and President Hoover. Both believe in high tariffs. Both believe that it is possible for their countries to do all the selling and no buying abroad. Both visualize prosperity in terms of the favored few. Mr. Bennett has radically increased the tariff of Canada. Mr. Hoover's term of office has been marked by the Hawley-Smoot and other high tariff legislation.

The trade returns of both Canada and the United States prove that the policy Mr. Bennett and Mr. Hoover have pursued has reduced commerce, strangled industry and increased distress in a measure such as neither country has experienced before. There are more than 500,000 unemployed in Canada and between 11,000,000 and 12,000,000 in the United States.

The external trade of Canada has dropped in three years from $2,640,000,000 to just a little over the billion mark. In the first six months of the fiscal year—April to September—the decline was just under $158,000,000, and unless policies are radically changed it will not be surprising if our external trade at the end of next March has failed to reach a billion dollars. Indeed, as announced in the House of Commons yesterday, from the proud position this Dominion held a year or so ago of fifth trading nation in the world, at the end of 1931 she had dropped to seventh place.

The external trade of the United States has dropped from $10,657,000,000 of three years ago to $4,514,000,000—very considerably more than half!

Indications are that nothing but a miracle can save Mr. Hoover from overwhelming defeat on November 8, while in St. Louis the electors recently forecast the overthrow of Mr. Bennett.

STAYING THE HAND OF DEATH

Dr. William J. Mayo believes that mankind is coming appreciably nearer to the day when there will be no "unnecessary" deaths.

In a speech at St. Paul, the famous Minnesota physician points out that the number of diseases which can be cured is constantly increasing, and remarks that the advance in the fight against sickness in the last decade is "little short of miraculous."

So, once again, a great medical scientist has given us a new idea. But it is his phraseology that attracts attention, somehow; that little expression, "unnecessary deaths," sums up so graphically mankind's long fight against an enemy that is certain to win in the end.

What it implies, of course, is something that even a small child knows—that death is inevitable for everyone, and that even the wisest doctor can not, after all, do more than postpone something that is bound to happen eventually.

But that perfectly obvious and inescapable truth is one to which the race has never quite succeeded in getting reconciled.

All of our church, most of our great art, are simply expressions of a pathetic, wistful human feeling that death is, or ought to be, something that can be conquered. We can never quite accept the knowledge that we were born to die. The race's noblest moments have grown out of that deep yearning for a life that can go on and on.

And yet, when we stop to think, it is so clear that it is the "unnecessary" death that causes most of our suffering.

The death of a small child, so unbelievably hard to bear; the death of a young man who has just begun to show promise of great achievement; the death of one who has just reached the height of his powers and who has a fine work to do; the death of a loved person with whom one has just started to explore the inexpressible richness of human devotion—these are the tragedies that darken life the most.

If we could once know that death could be made to wait until its season had come, its final arrival would not look so appalling. And it is this fair prospect which Dr. Mayo has held out to us.

Newspaper headline: "Millionaires Hold Annual Banquet." It took place in Philadelphia—and the millionaires in attendance are real ones, not paper ones. But to advertise the event seems hardly the best kind of publicity these days.

A contemporary says that what will defeat Mr. Hoover, if he is defeated, is the memory of the last three years, and what those years have brought, in hardship and misery, to the people of the United States. The contemporary we have quoted is a Canadian supporter of Mr. Bennett who has economic ideas similar to those of Mr. Hoover. They both belong to the all-selling and no-buying class. This is the gospel which has made the last three years so tragic for the worker—and the worker knows it.

EXORBITANT DEMANDS

Kansas City Times

One of the unfortunate developments in national affairs is the sharp conflict between sound and necessary economic policies and the demands of former soldiers. The disposition of every American citizen is to be fair to all who participate in the country's wars and generous to those who suffered disabilities or otherwise have been made dependent. The disposition of the veterans, so far as it is expressed in collective action, is to insist on demands that would strain the government's credit and retard recovery.

Loose Ends

The high courage of the picture folk—the resentment of a Scot who drinks too much tea—the ode of a lake among the cottonwood—and a new force of world uplift.

By H. B. W.

WHEN I look about me and observe the pictures of movie stars plastered on every billboard, smeared across every newspaper and hung in every shop window, I am filled with admiration. I mean, I envy the stars their strength of character which can endure such a wholesale exposure. If I were Miss Dietrich, for instance, and found myself oggling me at every corner with great lustreous eyes and eyebrows curving over my face as one of me, at least, before I shaved off my mustache. If I had to choose between the two, my choice would be prompt and decisive. Yet, I often wonder how these lovely ladies feel when they realize that their faces are being displayed in millions of homes, on millions of billboards and in millions of magazines, clothed in any kind of costume which the artists care to create, and most of which require little creation at all. I mean, how would you like it if you walked down the street and met yourself twice in every block, standing ten feet high on a billboard, with almost nothing on at all? I would feel like leaving town. But then, I am probably not as decorative with only a little of me, at least, the ladies from Hollywood, and probably you aren't either. Nevertheless, these ladies must have developed a high type of courage to endure it. But I suppose a goodly figure is even more essential.

MOST LETTERS to this column are unfit to print; not, I hasten to add, because they lack delicacy, but because they are too inflammatory or not inflammatory enough. To-day, however, I received two communications which depressed me sufficiently to make them worth recording. One was from a grizzled Scotman, a friend of mine, who spends a great deal of his time drinking tea at home and whisky at his club. I quote him to show the evil effects of tea on a man's character. Says the Scot: "Every Scotman who reads your recent scurrilous bit about bagpipes will resent the insult to our race; that is, unless he happens to be a constant reader of your newspaper, in which case he will not be surprised at anything you say. My own information is that you are Scottish yourself, which means that your apostasy of the bagpipes is even worse. Personally I give you a great deal of comfort to believe that you are a Hottentot or an Untouchable. However, I read with revulsion your tale of your friend, the bagpipe player, who was ejected from his house because he annoyed the neighbors with his playing on New Year's Eve. Now that St. Herbert Samuel has declared himself in favor of home rule for Scotland—Jerusalem coming to the aid of Aberdeen, as if it could teach Aberdeen anything—why I hope that in future your New Year's Eves may be celebrated with something worse; I trust that they may be made hideous by the playing of a Jew's harp next door." I told you that drinking tea had a bad effect on Scotchmen. He should stick to his natural beverage.

THE OTHER letter was from a fellow who has just returned home after an autumn holiday up-country, and it fairly broke my heart. For up-country, just now when the cottonwoods are yellow on the hillsides, as if somebody had dumped a billion gallons of paint on the mountain tops, and the air is crisp with frost and sunshine; well, this is the time to be up-country. But this fellow, who hides the heart of a poet under the rugged exterior of an efficient civil servant, tells about his lake in the Dry Belt much better than I could, even without the use of a single verb. Thus:

"The long all-day uphill tramp leading back home, and the arrival at the lonely log cabin on the shore of the lake at 5,000 feet. Dusk, with trout madly rising round the boat, a great horned owl calling in the dark spruce woods a few yards away, and the candle-shine on the bank. Blowing a trail up a ridge on to the high snow-covered top and melting some of the cold snow for tea. Cold roast mallard eaten at 7,000 feet. The ecstasy of the town-bred tripe-hound rejoicing in the new smells and excitement, and his encounter with the fish, the chipmunk, as well as larger game. Results of the family quarrel among the three skunks living under the shack. Wild geese. The morning song of the coyotes. Glimpses of the same and of moose and deer. The unseen bobcat which visited us nightly but who left tell-tale tracks in the snow, four inches of which fell one night. The soul-satisfying beauty of the cottonwoods, which changed their color within forty-eight hours. The whisky-jacks. The pleasure of finding a brand new beaver dam. The glorious abundance of telephones, and all town noises and so-called conveniences. The revivifying effects of 'Nelson's blood' after ten hours on the hills. Half a teaspoonful of sugar, a little butter, a spot of hot water, and not more than two fingers of rum, and the cup of the stove, when well bubbling and canned milk to taste. (Too much rum spoils this blessing, but it is always possible to have another one.) Do you wonder that, after reading this letter, my heart is quite broken?"

AN ORGANIZATION in Perth, West Australia, seems to have large possibilities. It is called the Ugly Men's Association, and only ugly men can join it. So far, no one has been any difficulty in being elected. The Uglies, as they call themselves, are not banded together solely in the defense of ugliness, which would be a worthy enough object for any body of men. They are helping 1,000 boys to learn useful trades and are conducting various charities. The movement has large possibilities because, under the banner of ugliness, it brings men together on a common ground, in defence of something far more personal and compelling than a party platform, since every man takes a keen interest in his own features though he may never bother to vote at the polls. Few men will fight for a political doctrine but no man will refuse to defend his face. The ugly face is a new rallying point in the world, a new badge of honor among the ugly men of the world, welded into a unit, could do something worth while. But probably the whole scheme would collapse when it came to an election. Some sick, handsome fellow would come along and get the entire women's vote. If you don't believe it, look at our parliament. Look at our own legislature. Look at our government. They are filled to overflowing with handsome men, until visitors sometimes imagine, during the budget debate, that they are looking at a hall of heroes, just like other halls of heroic statues in every respect except that it wears its clothes in public.

Mr. Loughheed's Back to the Land scheme would be helped along quite a bit by "My Little Grey Home in the West." Each member could be supplied with a microphone for broadcasting purposes, and this would be quite a help to the unemployed, as it would give the government a chance to borrow some money to start a microphone factory.

People who don't like radio noises will, of course, kick at that, but vocal training could be made compulsory, as it is only right that a number should have at least one qualification; and this would bring quite a lot of work to the unemployed singing professors. An official crooner could be appointed to fill in instead of broadcasting the uninteresting parts.

Of course, the thing could be carried too far. Duff Pattullo has got a Scotch streak in him, and you never know what he will do next. He might even go to the length of surreptitiously bringing in a set of bagpipes into the House.

THE DEAN'S "CENTENARY"

To the Editor:—"E. D." is unfair in implying I am an Americanophile just because I took issue with the Dean's pronouncement of the word centenary. (Readers will recall the Dean said "centenary" and that "E. D." found justification for this in the Oxford Dictionary, while my reference was only Webster's.) Chafing under "E. D.'s" implication, I immediately betook myself to the last resting place of the "King's English" Dictionary, published by British Books Limited, London; general editor, M. W. NEW NOTE OF HARMONY AT OTTAWA

To the Editor:—By the introduction of lines from Sir Edward Elgar's famous song "Land of Hope and Glory" into his speech on Imperial Conference concessions, our versatile and Gilbertian Premier opens up a vista of new and bright possibilities in parliamentary procedure.

It is not difficult to imagine that, next time he is questioned by Mr. Woodworth as to when the Government will lift its ban on "freight riding," Mr. Bennett may delight the House by a tuneful rendering of "When It's Springtime in the Rockies."

I am all in favor of this kind of thing, and am sure it would help to do away with that party business. But why confine it to Ottawa?

Why not do away with that tedious affair of a Speech from the Throne? At the opening of the next session at Victoria, Dr. Toime could take the floor with appropriate gesture and sing: "I Wish I Had Someone to Love Me." Of course, Duff would reply with the "Dipsey's Warning," or something like that; but Messrs. Bruhn, Jones, MacKenzie and Co. would be relied upon to respond as one man with: "Hail Hail! The Gang's All Here!" Mr. Jones's next budget speech might go down a lot better if he wound up with: "There's a Silver Lining," and

Smith, general manager of the British Coast Steamship Company, to a Times reporter this morning. Mr. Smith returned yesterday after a tour of inspection along the north coast of this province and the copper districts of Ketchikan, southeastern Alaska, during which he was engaged in looking over the trade prospects.

The Spanish Agricultural Society annual exhibition commenced to-day with the placing of exhibits and the judging of the fruit, vegetables and other indoor exhibits. To-morrow is the great day and there will be a large number of visitors from the city present.

Vancouver, October 17.—William Wane, vice-president of the C.P.R. who is in the city, said to-day: "It is the intention of the company to reserve sites for grain elevators on the Vancouver waterfront."

While leaving the harbor at 6 o'clock last evening the steamer Princess Victoria went ashore on Laurel Point and was unable to get off until 6.30 o'clock. When the Princess left the dock in the inner harbor a dense fog obscured the channel and the steamer went slightly off her course and struck close to the wharf of the soap works.

THE DEAN'S "CENTENARY"

To the Editor:—"E. D." is unfair in implying I am an Americanophile just because I took issue with the Dean's pronouncement of the word centenary. It is not difficult to imagine that, next time he is questioned by Mr. Woodworth as to when the Government will lift its ban on "freight riding," Mr. Bennett may delight the House by a tuneful rendering of "When It's Springtime in the Rockies."

I am all in favor of this kind of thing, and am sure it would help to do away with that party business. But why confine it to Ottawa?

Why not do away with that tedious affair of a Speech from the Throne? TROOPS MOVE IN MEXICO

Mexico City, Oct. 18.—The War Department to-day announced the 28th Infantry Regiment, 600 strong, had been ordered to the state of Jalisco, where yesterday they claimed they had broken up a religious revolt.

Dispatches from Guadalajara, where yesterday's police raid took place, said a priest named Ramon Gonzalez and two women had been arrested in connection with the investigation into the alleged plot for a rebellion.

Each member could be supplied with a microphone for broadcasting purposes, and this would be quite a help to the unemployed, as it would give the government a chance to borrow some money to start a microphone factory.

People who don't like radio noises will, of course, kick at that, but vocal training could be made compulsory, as it is only right that a number should have at least one qualification; and this would bring quite a lot of work to the unemployed singing professors. An official crooner could be appointed to fill in instead of broadcasting the uninteresting parts.

Of course, the thing could be carried too far. Duff Pattullo has got a Scotch streak in him, and you never know what he will do next. He might even go to the length of surreptitiously bringing in a set of bagpipes into the House.

Five C's and Hollywood will meet on Saturday afternoon at Central Park at 2 o'clock in a friendly engagement.

43 Years Before the Invention of the Telephone

Today the telephone enables a business man in Toronto to talk with his client in London, England. Paralleling the development in modern means of communication has been the growth of The Bank of Nova Scotia which today serves industry and enterprise with a Coast to Coast system of Branches in Canada, old established worldwide banking connections and the accumulated experience of a century of successful banking.

Not until 1875 was the first practical telephone—a queer, crude apparatus to modern eyes—put into operation. Yet, by that year, The Bank of Nova Scotia had been in business for well on towards half a century.

FURNITURE TRADE SENSES UP-TURN

Moderate Recuperation Revealed in Survey By R. G. Dun & Co.

New York, Oct. 18.—After a prolonged period of restricted production and reduced sales, the furniture industry now is showing moderate signs of recuperation. Gains have not been pronounced, but upward movement, if only of small proportions, have strengthened confidence. Although most manufacturers continue operations on short-time schedules, with reduced forces, some of the producers of case goods are working full time, and have added night shifts. Others are working ten hours daily, but with a smaller crew, according to the survey of the furniture industry which has just been completed by R. G. Dun & Co.

"Changes in designs have not been unusual," the survey continues, "with the exception of certain specialty articles, the most popular styles including the Georgian, early American, early English, French provincial, French Empire, Federal American, contemporary Biedermeier, Queen Anne and Directoire. The demand for antiques and modernistic pieces still persists, but only a small part of the entire volume is represented by this division. While it is true that purchases have been confined largely to the cheaper grades of merchandise, more attention now is being given to quality goods. Discrimination in buying never was so marked, and as purchases must be confined to one or two articles at a time, insistence on quality and long-wearing properties are making retailers alter their merchandising policies in consonance with a radically new selling condition.

"In wholesale furniture markets," the survey points out, "the buying movement which started some six weeks ago, continues unchecked, with retailers ordering goods for immediate delivery; the greatest stress is being placed on medium-priced merchandise. Producers estimate that case goods constitute 40 per cent of the current orders, with the upholstered pieces accounting for the remainder. Although furniture factories are adhering to early price levels in handling orders, wholesale prices of raw materials have increased 10 to 15 per cent in recent weeks, which has occasioned an upward trend in the finished product. Substantial advances are in prospect for spring lines.

"Old accounts that have been carried for some time have not been liquidated to any great extent, but collection figures for the current year, in comparison to sales, have indicated a fairly satisfactory condition. Installment collections are improving in some districts, as a result of increased employment.

"Failures in the furniture industry are running higher than they did last year, the number of defaults among manufacturers during the first half of the current year being nearly one-third larger than the total for the entire twelve months of 1931, while the amount of the liabilities doubled. In the retail and wholesale group, the showing was somewhat more favorable. The insolvency record of the furniture industry, as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., reveals a total of 667 defaults, with liabilities of $22,473,570, during the first six months of 1932, as

Duplication May Kill Move For Gas Control

City Council Awaits New Report on Petitions Before Taking Final Action

Sponsors of Control Move to Fight Quash Attempt; Minds Are Changed

Although the attempt by a section of gasoline service station operators to secure legislation prohibiting sale of gasoline after 8 o'clock in the evening during the winter months appeared doomed to failure at yesterday evening's meeting of the City Council, supporters of the plan will wage an active fight before admitting defeat, they said afterwards.

The council's only move in the discussion yesterday evening was to refer a counter-petition, opposing the control plan, to the solicitor and license inspector for a check up and further report, but it was indicated this report will probably recommend that the council would not be warranted in passing a by-law as suggested.

In a ruling already given the city solicitor states that duplication of signatures on the counter-petition in sufficient numbers should halt council action and Alderman P. R. Brown was prepared yesterday evening to move that the whole matter be dropped by filing of both petitions.

Signatures of 75 per cent of the licensed occupiers of premises engaged in the business on a petition favoring the move are required before the council is required to act. As a mathematical fact, the initial petition actually carries 84.61 per cent of the necessary signatures. The counter-petition, however, bears 38.46 per cent. This unusual situation is brought about by the fact that nine of the eligible appear on both petitions.

Mr. Pringle said this apparently showed that some of the service station operators were undecided on the proposed legislation and the council could have no definite idea of the matter. Under these circumstances the council would not be warranted in passing the measure.

NOT UNANIMOUS
"It seems funny that at the end of September we receive a petition sufficient to carry the by-law and two weeks later some of the same people are opposing it," said Alderman Brown. "It is quite apparent they are not unanimous, so I think we should file the petitions and have done with it."

Alderman W. T. Straith pointed out that there had not been an official report on the signatures of the counter-petition and on his motion a second report from the solicitor and license inspector was requested to clear up this point.

FIGURES GIVEN
Figures presented to the council, showing the official check-up on the first petition, and the preliminary check on the counter-move, revealed the following situation: Number of firms in gasoline business, 85; eligible for petition, through payment of license fees, 85; signatures on first petition, 71; eligible, 33, or 84.61 per cent; signatures on counter-petition, 26; eligible, 15, or 34.61 per cent. Nine signatures on the first list were duplicated on the second.

Alderman Alex. Peden questioned the ruling that because some of the station operators had been granted a time extension for payment of license fees they should be ineligible for signing the petition any more than a taxpayer who had not paid his land tax, account at the first of the year, but this was answered by the solicitor, who said the eligible included only those to whom licenses had been issued.

The report from the solicitor and license inspector will be placed before the council Friday afternoon.

PLAYGROUND IS RESERVED

Council Sets Aside Area Near Willows For Park Purposes

On recommendation of the lands committee, the City Council yesterday evening set aside an area of city-owned land on Amphion Street near the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club grounds, for playground purposes.

Alderman H. O. Litchfield, chairman of the committee, told the aldermen there was no public playground in the district and the location chosen would be suitable for the purpose.

The reservation was opposed by Alderman John Worthington, who as chairman of the parks committee asked for an opportunity to investigate the proposal.

"They'll be telling us soon we're spending too much for parks, and I would like to look into this before voting on it," he said.

Aldermen R. T. Williams and T. W. C. Hawkins joined him, and the three voted against the recommendation.

"Smoke Nuisance" Here, Is Claim

Victoria, although not a factory town, has a smoke nuisance, according to a complaint made to the City Council by J. L. Forrester.

Mr. Forrester said there are at least four big chimneys emitting heavy black smoke in the city and something should be done about it. The council referred the complaint to the building inspector and fire chief for investigation.

Alderman W. D. Todd was inclined to disregard the complaint.

"Surely you can let the few industries we have alone," he said.

Dr. James L. Biggar Says Depression Moving Eastward; Support Well Maintained

Canada is standing by the Red Cross despite all talk of depression, and contributions to the society have not diminished to any material extent, according to Dr. James L. Biggar, national commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society, who has arrived in Victoria from Toronto.

"With the exception of southern Saskatchewan, where drought has left whole communities without any money at all, contributions have been well maintained," Dr. Biggar said.

"Never has the Red Cross faced a more critical situation than now, with demands for aid increasing enormously as thousands of persons in areas from Peace River to Cape Breton become dependent upon the society for aid in these times of stress and hardship.

"The coming winter will see the biggest strain on the society's reserves and its strength must be preserved to overcome the many problems and difficulties which will undoubtedly present themselves before the coming of spring."

Dr. Biggar, passed the scene of the Junior Red Cross in British Columbia, the outpost hospital services and the extension of relief to ex-service men. He was met upon his arrival here by J. Corry Wood, head of the Victoria branch. He will remain in Victoria for a week with headquarters in the Red Cross offices in the Belmont Building. He said he is making a survey of conditions across the country.

Y.W.C.A. Directors Hear Miss Law On Co-operation

Miss Ethel Law, national director of training at the Y.W.C.A. headquarters in Toronto, addressed the board of directors of the local association at their monthly meeting yesterday afternoon, commenting on the benefits received from the British Columbia Regional Conference just concluded.
She also described the activities of the various departments under the national organization in other countries, painting a vivid picture of their work, notably in India, Japan and China.

The speaker stressed the possibilities in co-operation between the Y.M.C.A.
and Y.W.C.A. in their work among young men and women.

Routine reports were received from committees, that of the house committee recommending co-operation housing dependant young women.

Votes of thanks for their co-operation and towards the success of the conference were extended to the following: Miss Parfitt, song leader; Mrs.
G. H. E. Green and Miss Macquinn Daniels, accompanists, and to The Times and The Colonist.

A standing vote of sympathy was passed by the board in memory of F. C.
Nevin, a member of the advisory board, and the secretary was instructed to write to Mrs. Nevin, a former director, conveying sincere condolences in her loss.

After over twenty years as president of the Local Council of Women,
Miss S. R. Crease has resigned from that office. Her letter of resignation,

Don't let illness pull him down!

When your boy is building up and keeping well it is such a pity to let an illness undo years of sound growth. Too frequently measles, diphtheria, mumps and whooping cough bring the sturdiest children low.
Give him SCOTT'S EMULSION regularly. It saves the weakening strain of growth by building the body and feeding the bones. It maintains resistance to disease germs by enriching the blood.
In that way it helps to ward off infections that attack the throat and lungs.
SCOTT'S EMULSION is a valuable aid in keeping coughs, colds and illness away. It gives your boy a better chance of steady growth and vigorous health. Don't wait until he is ailing—get a bottle now and save trouble later on.

Do Just These Two Simple Things—Fat Melts Away

Here is a quick and easy way to take off a pound a day—four to seven pounds every week!—with never a hungry moment. A way any doctor will tell you is safe and sure.

This is what you do: Take a teaspoonful ordinary Jaf Salts in glass of water half hour before breakfast every morning. This reduces moisture, weight, fatness. Also cleanses your system of the waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat.

Then do this about eating. FILL YOUR STOMACH—eat your fill—of lean meats, vegetables like spinach, cauliflower, cabbage, tomatoes, etc.,
and lots of salads. Eat a lot. Eat all you can hold. Don't go hungry a minute. Cut down on butter, sweets and desserts, bread. Eat any fruit for dessert.

That's all you do. Fat seems to melt away. The coarse lines of over-weight give way to the refined lines of slenderness. You lose as much as a pound a day. You feel better than for years before. For in this treatment you achieve two important results. The Jaf Salts cleanse your system of waste matter and excess toxins that most fat people have, and banishes puffiness and bloat. Instead of feeling fat, you feel trim. You'll be glad that you did. You can get Jaf Salts at any drug store.

*Note particularly—the salts are urged purely as a poison-banisher agent—not as a reducing. The change in food does the work. (Adv.)

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

COOKIES ARE GOOD DESSERT

FILLERS

By SISTER MARY

Cookies always can fill in as a dessert with fresh or canned fruit, maffy a glass of milk disappears uncomplainingly when accompanied by a cookie, they are popular in the school lunch box, and a cup of tea seems twice as sociable if a plate of cookies is on the table.

Drop cookies and over-night cookies do away with the tedious process of rolling and cutting. If rolled cookies are wanted, thorough chilling of the dough makes it much easier to handle.

The texture of cookies made with easier to digest than cake. Plain sugar cookies can be given to small children long before they should be allowed to eat cake. Cookies with nuts and raisins are rather more difficult to digest, but if the fruit and nuts are finely chopped they are not objectionable, and older children especially like them.

Rolling out cookies are easy to make and keep excellently.

ROLLED OATS COOKIES

One cup granulated sugar, 1 cup lard or other shortening, 2 eggs, 1/2 cup sweet milk, 2 cups rolled oats, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup seeded and chopped raisins.

Cream shortening and add sugar slowly. Stir in 1 cup of flour. Add eggs well beaten. Mix and sift remaining flour with salt and cinnamon and add to first mixture. Add milk and vanilla. Dissolve soda in two teaspoons cold water and stir into mixture. Add rolled oats and raisins and mix well. Spread as thin as possible on oiled and floured pans, and bake ten minutes in a moderate oven. Cut in two-inch squares. The recipe makes about five dozen cookies.

HERMITS

Two cups light brown sugar, 2-3 cup shortening, 3 eggs, 1/2 cup sweet milk, 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 cup seeded and chopped raisins, 1 teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon each cloves, ginger and allspice, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Cream shortening and gradually add sugar. Add eggs beaten, until light with milk. Mix and sift flour, salt, spices, soda and baking powder. Add with raisins to first mixture. Mix thoroughly and drop from teaspoon on oiled and floured cookie sheet. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven.

The spiciness of these cookies makes them ideal for the first chilly days of autumn.

Makers of Dance Music

Most modern dance music does not mount to a great deal. It comes and it goes. A popular air of one year is likely to be forgotten the next.

The second Johann Strauss (portrait)

There is dance music, however, which is stood the test of time. People enjoy it to-day perhaps just as much as when it was first produced, many are ago.

Johann Strauss, who was born in Vienna in 1804, is one of the musicians who have produced dance music of classic quality. He wrote 152 waltzes, 4 some of them are still played.

Strauss was the son of an innkeeper. Although he showed talent for music during his early boyhood, his father wanted him to learn a trade.
He finally gave consent for him to study music.

At the age of fifteen, Johann became a member of a little "band" composed of only four members. This band played at a place of amusement known as "The Sperl." Largely because of the good music provided, "The Sperl" grew to be very popular, and the band was enlarged.

Seven years later, Strauss formed a band of his own, with fourteen members. When it played in another place, known as "The Swan," the patrons broke forth in warm applause. Strauss and his band came to be in great demand. The membership was increased to 200, and tours were made in Germany, Belgium and Holland.

Most of the pieces played by the band were composed by Strauss himself. In 1837, he went with his fellow musicians to Paris and London, where his music brought pleasure to those who heard it. In London Strauss gave seventy-two concerts, and the band played at balls held in honor of the crowning of Queen Victoria.

Twelve years later, Strauss made a second tour of England. When he was leaving, a farewell party was given to him on the Thames River, dozens of boats following the vessel, which contained the composer and his band.

Despite his own success, Strauss did not want any of his sons to follow in his footsteps, but strangely all three of them did so, and all three showed fine talent.

Most successful of the three was the eldest, who bore the same name as his father—Johann Strauss. His work is no less famous than that of his father.
He wrote almost 400 pieces of dance music, and one of them was the beautiful "Blue Danube," which you probably have heard many a time. The second Johann Strauss lived until 1899.
Like his father, he made his home in Vienna—which is one of the most pleasant cities of the earth.

ORCHESTRA IS MUCH ENJOYED

Victoria Philharmonic Gives Notable Performance at Shrine Auditorium

Reta McNeill and George Gray, Vocalists, in Yesterday's Fine Programme

By G. J. D.

High commendations are due the Victoria Philharmonic Orchestra, first in its progress since its impressive first appearance a year ago; secondly, the sincerity and keenness of its members, among whom in the string sections are many young players of both sexes, and lastly, to its founder-conductor, Alfred Prescott, to whose enthusiasm and astuteness the orchestra's very existence is due. Judging from its second appearance yesterday evening at the Shrine Auditorium and its excellent playing throughout in a diversifying and "just-right" programme, the orchestra's position is assured. Its value to local symphonic music is of inestimable value, to say nothing of its importance and the opportunity given to the many young orchestral students, many of whom having already established for themselves a most praiseworthy and well-earned musical position. In the process of time, combined with a whole-hearted communal support it deserves, the orchestra is bound to become, as is the case in all musical centres, a glorious and attractive asset in the life of the city. The orchestra has made a laudable beginning.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Phelps, of Rook
Bay, are guests of Mrs. Phelps Sr.

Recent visitors to the Shrine Au-

PLAYING OF THE ORCHESTRA

Its performance yesterday was highly meritorious, and its programme, exceedingly ambitious, perhaps, was lively, diversified and quite engaging.

The playing of the orchestra provided ample proof of the excellence of the organization, for the effort was sufficiently sustained in all that was accomplished to enable the quality necessary in an orchestra to be judged.

The first violins, with William Trotter, as leader, were particularly resonant in tone, and the brass and percussion were all that could be desired. Attack, cohesion and tone quality were alike admirable.

There were some numbers that made the greater appeal, as shown at usual by the listeners who continuously and untingly gave of their enthusiasm, showing apparent pleasure in the occasion.

Perhaps the orchestra's greatest efforts were in the two movements of "The Mighty Fifth," by Beethoven, which was the most perfect example of symphonic form, and the most direct message which any composer has ever given the world. The andante (the second movement), a message of consolation and peace, was especially good (if only the cellos had been more sustained and singing of tone in the extremely beautiful opening theme).

The Allegro, the finale, and a veritable hymn of triumph, was well achieved.
In the second group, where unianimity and tone were quite good, was Mozart's fine overture "Marriage of Figaro," capitalizing Mozartian Johann Strauss waltz from "Gypsy Baron," crisp where crispness was, legato where smoothness dwelt, and in the "Dance of the Gypsies" (Balkasena), played with vim and subtlety, and the "Keltic Lament," by Foulds, so well liked that the last part had to be repeated.

Other numbers were the triumphant
"Entry of the Boyards" (Halvorsen), Orie's "To Spring," and Sibelius's great national epic, that pictures the beauty of Finland's scenery combined with the inner heart of Finland's people, the tone-poem "Finlandia," that concluded the programme.

Two well-known vocalists to local concert platforms, Rita McNeill, soprano, and George Gray, baritone, assisted, the former giving two groups with marked intelligence and sincerity.
Mozart's "Alleluia," Spohr's beautiful
"Rose Softly Blooming," and Cyril Scott's "Lullaby," extremely soothing, and Tostens "Windflower," George Gray, who sings in hearty, whole-souled manner, gave delight in his two songs "The Fever" (John Keble in the original) and "The Lullaby," and the rousing "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," being enthusiastically applauded.

The two able accompanists were Gwendoline Harper, who accompanied Rita McNeill, and the Philharmonic Orchestra's accompanist, Miss Wilson, who also accompanied Mr. Gray.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

VIRTUE OF HONESTY REQUIRES CAREFUL EDUCATION

It can easily be understood that children in generous homes, where everything is the child's as a matter of course, may develop a blunted sense of property values. Such children are capable of appropriating tempting articles or even small change without any sense of being dishonest or of having committed a crime. To train the child to respect what is his and what does not belong to him begins in babyhood with the stereotyped reiteration that this ball is baby's—but this pocketbook is mother's. This should be repeated constantly, so that the child builds up an understanding of what is his to use without permission and what things can not be touched or enjoyed without asking for the privilege.

With this background of home training there is very little likelihood that a child will pick up anything that belongs to someone else. If he should happen to, the most impression can be made upon him by making him return it himself. It is not enough for the mother to carry the article back with apologies; she should take the child with her and he should apologize. Then the matter is ended.
That is all the punishment necessary and it should be taken for granted that such a mistake will not be repeated.

If it occurs again, the parent may find it difficult to forgive the child.
She can hardly be fair, because she has such a distaste for any exhibition of dishonesty. Yet there are many legitimate causes for it, and the mother may be largely to blame. We should expect that a child wants to learn to be honest and we should not make that virtue too hard for him.

LOOK FOR THE CAUSE
Roads which may lead the older child to dishonesty include lack of pocket money which places him at a constant disadvantage with his playmates; lack of any personal possessions of which to be proud, or of any methods by which to obtain them; too little home life and too much street companionship, with the child's natural tendency to hunt for excitement and win the approbation of companions. My leaflet, "Causes of Dishonesty," may help the parent to recognize the causes and to offer the child intelligent help instead of punishments which drive him farther from her. The leaflet is available to any reader without cost, but each request should be accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

and Mine" department of this newspaper.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY COMING

Metropolitan Group Has Interesting Meeting; Varied Programme Offered

The weekly meeting of the Metropolitan Young People's Society was held in the schoolroom yesterday evening. The devotional period was conducted by Miss Jessie Christopher, assisted by Miss Phyllis Fetherstone, Miss Agnes Dennstedt, Arnold Keen and John Bray. The business session was in charge of the president, Donald Mc-Caine. The treasurer's report was received and adopted.

The president announced the rally of all the United Young People's Associations will be held November 5 and 6 in Fairfield United Church.

The theme of the evening was "Roman Night" under the direction of Miss Molly Lally. She was assisted by the following members of her group:
Miss Betty Jones, who gave a paper on the life of Virgil; Dorothy Cronk, Edith White and Jack Church, three impromptu speakers; a play, "Pyramus and Thisbe," was presented by Jean Cameron, Bert Simpson, Merriette Matthews, Don McCaine, Douglas Ritchie and Gordon Fetherly, and directed by Molly Lally.

The recreation period was under the supervision of Jean Lorimer. The evening ended with the singing of one verse of "Abide With Me."

The meeting next week will be under the direction of Miss Jean Lorimer and will take the form of "Youth of Other Lands."

Gallies" and "Somebody Cares," were very sweetly sung by Mrs. T. Southern, accompanied by Miss Phyllis Dilworth at the piano.

The guest speaker was Miss Isabel Haddock, who for a number of years was engaged in community work among the various nationalities in Prince Rupert. Miss Haddock gave a very encouraging report of the progress made during the years spent in that city. At the present time she is a member of the staff of the Oriental Home in Victoria. After a hearty vote of thanks tendered the speaker and artists the meeting closed by repeating the Misraha benediction.

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

He sometimes wondered of late whether he had not made a mistake in living a solitary life, for he realized that his sons would probably seek homes for themselves. As for Biddy, but newly home from a Continental boarding school, about to have her first season in town, he expected nothing but that she would have suitors by the score, and marry young.

He was a generous father and a fairly well-to-do man, though he had made the one grievous mistake of his life. Walter Horne was now twenty-six years of age, and looked old for his years. He had the absent, studious look, which a good many years, active participation in business had not removed. He had looks of a kind, and his gentle manners won him many friends. But the set in which they moved thought of him somewhat contemptuously as a dreamer, and Horne was often pitted because he had so little help from his sons.

It was a great chemical works in which there might have been supposed to exist all sorts of scope for scientific research, but it was not a branch of study that appealed to Walter Horne, and he had made no mark on the concern. The best that could be said of him was that he did the routine relegated to him, and caused no anxiety. But his department required the constant supervision of the head.

Gilbert, who had studied chemistry at college, and who had been in the laboratory, had a better opportunity, but he was headless, lazy, and anxious about his own pleasure. So far, indeed, the situation was so bad that the remark that Horne had little comfort as yet in his sons, and that as an age when most men are able to rest upon their oars, he had still to live the strenuous life, each day full of active work and fresh enterprise.

They were very busy in Christmas week at the works in anticipation of the closing down for a few days. Nevertheless, on the last day Horne, getting his coat in the little dressing-room, said he would walk home.

"There's a nasty sleet blowing in the wind, father. You'd better drive," said Walter.

"No, I'll walk, but you needn't," said Horne rather brusquely. "Where's Gilbert?"

"He left the laboratory about four o'clock."

"Did he, indeed, and who gave him leave, eh? He's been taking a sight too many afternoons off lately. I'm not going to stand it. I'll just wait till the holidays are over, then I'll have a good straight talk with him."

"Turn up the collar of your coat, sir," said Walter with a solicitous touch, as he glanced through the window at the driving sleet.

"It won't hurt. I'm not too much fine china about you young men," said Horne, slightly sarcastic. "I attribute my splendid health to the exercise I take, and it's not a few flakes of snow that'll keep me back. Pray, don't walk. I assure you I need no company."

"I want to come," said Walter quietly.

"All right, come along. It's six isn't it? Sutherland and Bannerman will stop at nine. I may be back later. Oh, but I forgot. I've got to take the chair at Grahame Begg's meeting at the Music Hall at eight. That means an early dinner and impaired digestion. Well, well, I suppose it's all in the day's work. I'm beginning to feel, however, that my days are just a trifle long."

He clapped his hat on his head. Walter held open the door, and they passed out. The biting north wind met them, and the snow was whirling.

"I don't care how good an idea it is! Get 'em off right now!"

"Why, sure I done that. I put them pieces of inner tube on each corner an' tacked 'em down, cuz you're allus hollerin' it's me who kicke 'em off, an' allus makin' me come an' turn 'em down agin'—but I'd never thought you'd kick a rug up—YOU!—pull your feet out now, an' watch it snap right back in place—IT'S A GOOD IDEA! AWRIGHT—I TRIED—"

Cramond Road, which stretched before them bare and cheerless, the wind whistling through the trees on one side, and across the bare fields on the other.

Walter put his hand through his father's arm, and unconsciously pressed it. After a moment the pressure was returned.

"I can rely on you at least, Walter, and after all we can't be born alike," said the elder man with a little sigh. He felt in a better, disappointed mood, not the first time by any means, but somehow he was unable to hide it.

"I am sorry I am no good, father. I do my best," said Walter with a slight bitterness in his own voice. "But I've always been the square man in the round hole."

Horne changed the subject at once, because he felt it had reached the futile stage.

"It's a very wild night, and they'll have it black in the first to-night. Not many folks abroad. Hulloa, what's that?"

They were at a very lonely part of the road, close in the thick shadow of their own woods, and not more than five hundred yards from the lodge gate at Burton Lea.

Under one of the flaring gas-lamps something was huddled up. As they came forward, they saw to their dismay that it was the figure of a woman lying partially across the path with her face buried on her arms.

An empty bottle on the path beside her told its own tale.

"Dead drunk, and not a bobby in sight," said Horne in a tone of extreme disgust. "How on earth did she get here at this time of night? She seems respectably dressed too. What are we to do? We can hardly leave her there."

"No, or she'll be dead before mid-night. It's freezing hard," said Walter, and stooping down he tried to move her around. But she was dead asleep, and he could make no impression.

"As full as the Baltic," said Horne, and, taking an arm each, he got her along to the lodge. Mrs. Glas must look after her till William gets a policeman.

Uncle Wiggly's Queer Ride

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Uncle Wiggly and Bub, the rainbow boy, stood on the edge of the duck pond looking in. They had come in search of an adventure, after the rabbit gentleman had been wet in a rain-storm which gave him a rheumatism pain in his left, hind leg.

Bub had been throwing stones into the pond and then, as I told you in the last episode, all of a sudden he popped Big Snap, the mud turtle, who thought Bub had been throwing stones at him.

"But really I wasn't, Big Snap," said the little boy. "I was just throwing stones for fun, you know."

"It wouldn't have been any fun if you had hit me," hissed Big Snap, hissing his way of talking, just as it is that of the steam radiator in the bathroom on a cold morning.

"You might have cracked my shell," said the little boy. "I wouldn't have let him do that," said Uncle Wiggly.

Victoria Gridders Will Meet Meralomas Here Saturday

Locals Confident Of Tacking First Defeat On Leaders

After Chalking Up Great Victory Over Varsity Here Saturday Victoria's Big Four Canadian Rugby League Entry Goes Into Heavy Training for Important Engagement Here Saturday; Ernie Peden May Turn Out; Will Work Out Every Evening; Match Starts at 3 o'clock

Fresh from their smashing 10-to-1 victory over the University of British Columbia gridders here on Saturday Victoria's Canadian rugby squad went into strict training to-day in preparation for its match at the Royal Athletic Park on Saturday afternoon against the league-leading Meralomas. The Victoria players gathered at the park this afternoon at 5 o'clock for a stiff workout and will engage in daily practices up to Friday evening.

Saturday's match will get underway at 3 o'clock, and in view of last Saturday's fine victory a good turnout is looked for by local officials.

Coach Doug Roberts stated to-day his line-up for Saturday would be changed over that which opened against Varsity. Until he puts the boys through their paces Roberts is not just sure what line he will throw against the Vancouver club.

"The Meralomas have been traveling at a fast clip, but they are due for a big surprise this week-end, and I am counting on Victoria to halt their winning streak," Roberts stated. "The local boys hit their real stride for the first time against Varsity, and from now on will be heard from in a big way."

All the Victoria players came through the Varsity match without any serious injuries. McLeod, who made his first appearance on the local team, suffered a torn cartilage in one leg, but will be in shape for this week's engagement.

Coach Roberts announced an effort is being made to have Ernie Peden, captain of the Varsity squad last season, turn out. Peden is at present in the city, being in attendance at last Saturday's fixture. He is a big strapping fellow and his weight and ability would add considerable strength to the Victoria line.

In Meralomas the Victoria club will be tackling just about the toughest outfit in the Big Four. The league players have engaged in two matches and won both of them. In order to retain their chances to win the title the Capitals must whip the top dogs. Should both Victoria and V.A.C. defeat Meralomas and Victoria win its third game here against the V.A.C., the locals have a chance to finish in a tie for first place. Defeat of the V.A.C. last Saturday by New Westminster kept Victoria in the running.

Vancouver, Oct. 18.—"Big Four" schedules were ruthlessly swept aside yesterday when an unexpected ultimatum from Arnold C. Dowd, president of the Western Canada Rugby Football Union, decreed that Calgary Alouha Tigers, Alberta champs, should meet the winner of the B.C. championship on a Vancouver gridiron on November 5. This comes as a distinct surprise. The telegram containing the conditions was received yesterday afternoon by Jack Bentham, secretary of the "Big Four," and a hurried special meeting was called of league representatives last night to consider ways and means to conclude the already abbreviated schedule before the arrival of the Calgary team.

A solution was finally arrived at by moving the Meralomas-V.A.C. conflict from its intended date on November 5 to make it a night game on October 26 at Athletic Park. This decision places a heavy burden on the championship aspirations of the Meralomas, as they will be forced to play four games in two weeks, and if they are successful in winning the Lipton Trophy, they will go into a two-game series with the Calgary Tigers with only a week's rest. It is expected that the first game of the Alberta-B.C. series will be played on Saturday afternoon, November 5, at 2:30, with the second game on Wednesday night, November 9. This will be something out of the ordinary for a Calgary team, as they have never played night football.

With upsets playing an unparalleled part in "Big Four" history, anything may happen before a champion is decided for B.C. Should the league end in a three-way tie for first place between Meralomas, New Westminster and V.A.C., or even a tie between two teams, it will be necessary to play an additional game on the night of November 2 to decide the victor.

For the series with the "Altamaha" Tigers it is planned to issue "booster" tickets at a reduced figure for both games. B.C. will be under the burden of a heavy guarantee. Season ticket-holders will be admitted to both games at reduced prices.

SQUAMISH AND ARGOS IN TIE

Battle to 12 to 12 Deadlock in First Game of Western Lacrosse Final

Winnipeg Club Ties Score in Dying Moments; Second Game Carded-To-Night

Winnipeg, Oct. 18.—Squamish Indians, champions of British Columbia, and Winnipeg Argos, Manitoba titlists, battled to a 12 to 12 draw in the first game of the western Canada box lacrosse championship here yesterday evening. With total goals to count, the second and final game of the series will be played to-night.

More than 1,000 witnessed one of the finest matches here in years, with action until the final bell had sounded. A terrific pace was maintained throughout.

The Indians, the race which originated Canada's national game, were a treat to watch. They presented a team strong in every department of the game. From their brilliant little goal-keeper out, there was not a flaw in their makeup.

Argonauts fought a great uphill battle from the first period on. Only once during the game were they out in front, and then for only a short time. It looked as if the Indians would take a one-goal lead into to-night's fray, but Charlie Benson evened matters up with just over a minute to play.

STAR OF GAME
Louie Louis, a powerfully-built fellow, with the stamina peculiar to his race, was the star of the game. He gave the Argos trouble all night and, although he was watched closely, managed to score two goals and assist in three others.

Bill Morphet, the "kid" member of the team, who has just reached his seventeenth year, gave Louis a race for honors. He can hang on to the ball longer than any man on the team and also score goals. He got three of them yesterday evening.

The two Benson brothers, Harold and Charlie, stole the show as far as the Argonauts were concerned. It was these two lads that supplied the punch in the Argos' attack, while they also played great defensive games. Harold got three goals and a like number of assists, while Charlie came through with one counter.

The Indians went to the front early in the first period, when Ray Baker ran in unopposed to score. A few seconds later they increased their margin with Louis accounting for the goal. The Argos rallied their forces to get a couple of goals, but when the rest period came they were on the short end of a 5 to 2 score.

DEADLOCK SCORE
The Argonauts opened up in the second period, when Squamish made the mistake of trying to protect their lead. It wasn't long before everything went all right up. The Argos ended with the score deadlocked at 4-4-0-0.

The final period will live long in the memories of those who saw it. First one team and then the other fought to the front. With four and a half minutes to play, the Indians were on the long end of a 12 to 11 score, but at the 18:55 mark, Harold Benson received the ball in his own area, raked down right wing and beat goalie

First of Winter Series Billed For Next Week at Crystal Garden

Continuance of the Vancouver Island Swimming League gains this winter was assured yesterday evening when the group met for its 1932 organization meeting at the Crystal Garden. Decision to hold the first meet of the series on Monday evening and re-election of R. W. Hiberson as president, featured the business at the meeting.

Colin McFadyen was elected to the post of vice-president and Pat Copeland was again chosen secretary-treasurer. Votes of thanks were passed to the president and secretary-treasurer for their efficient work last season. Invitation will be sent out to the Canadian Scottish, the Fifth Regiment, Work Point Barracks and the Navy to have them come into the league.

It was decided to run the first meet as a flat race gala on the understanding that competitors would be clocked for handicaps later in the season on their showings in the opening fixture. Each club will be allowed to enter two competitors in each event.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Drive With a Light Rein if You Would Develop Children Into Good Citizens, Is Dorothy Dix's Advice—Cowardly to Ease Own Conscience by Confessing Past to Husband

DEAR MISS DIX—We are organizing a young people's club, the aim of which is character building for good citizenship. What shall we do about the exercises fostered by the club? What of the boy and girl who go for a drink of water and remain out for several minutes? What of the girl who seems to care nothing for the other girls' company but usually has three or four boys cornered at any public place or gathering? What about the girl who insists on holding her boy friend's hand when walking with him? What of the boy who wants to remain on the porch and smoke or have a social chat during the club hours? What of the girls who want to park in a car for a while before going into the house?

ALABAMA LEE.

Answer—Well, I should say that all of these are just the usual specimens of the common or garden variety of youngsters. Nothing at all unusual about them, but they are good material to work on, and your club is a fine instrument for training them into the sort of men and women who will be a credit to you.

But if you want your club to be a success and do the work for which you are organizing it, don't be too pernickily about what the boys and girls do and don't have too many rules. Don't make it a penal institution instead of a pleasure-house. For your own sake, drive the young ones away instead of attracting them to it. And don't think that you can coerce them into doing the way you want them to do. The day is past, if it ever existed, when you could drive youth along the straight and narrow road. Now you have to entice them along it.

One of the greatest mistakes that the world has ever made has been in wreathing vice with roses and making a scarecrow of virtue. That was a grand sales talk for vice that has driven millions into wrongdoing because they thought that they would find happiness in it, but, in reality, virtue is a lot more attractive than vice, and the only happy people are those who lead clean, decent lives. If you want to find contented people who are really enjoying life you won't find them among gangsters and drunkards and harlots.

So don't lay down too many hard and fast laws for your young people and make your sessions like a school with a stern teacher. Instead, try to make your sessions so interesting that the young people will not want to miss any of it. That will take care of your water-drinkers and your smokers.

Then work up a spirit of sportsmanship. Tell the youngsters that the only way you can make the club a success is for everybody to join in and help boost it along. I was reading the other day what a Rhodes scholar had to say about English games. He said that nobody seemed to play just to win and that nobody seemed to care whether you played a good game or not. The thing was the spirit of sportsmanship with everybody entering in and doing the best they could.

If you can get that idea across to your club it will make it a success for the reason that many of the girls and boys hang back with shyness and vanity. They won't try to play for fear they may not win or that they will be laughed at.

You can stop the girl from holding her sweetie's hand by giving her a bit and letting her know that it is one of the things that simply isn't done among sophisticated people. They do their petting in private.

Certainly it is to laugh to see a girl, as you so often do, riding around in an automobile with her arm around a boy's neck while he is sitting up stiff as a poker with a look on his face that indicates he would like to strangle her, for well he knows she is making him an object of derision for every observer.

Here's wishing your club all success. But drive with a light rein. Young folks are skittish colts these days.

DEAR MISS DIX—I have two boys, one eleven, the other eight. When we go out riding I always put the two boys in the back and sit with my husband. My mother-in-law thinks this is terrible. She says I should let one sit with the father and the other with me. My neighbors also gossip about this. I am young and I am crazy about my husband and like to be with him. What must I do?

A WORRIED WOMAN.

Answer—Quit bothering about what your mother-in-law and your neighbors think on this subject. Laugh off their criticisms. It is none of their business, anyway. Let them sit where they please in their cars and you do the same in yours.

As a matter of fact I think the arrangement you make is the wise one. If you consider it from the children's point of view, which I suppose is your mother-in-law's angle, the two boys are far happier and have more fun sky-larking together on the back seat than either one would have if forced to sit demurely by his parents. Grown-up people and children bore each other stiff. They have nothing that they are really interested in to talk about together, but two kids about the same age can giggle and chatter for hours together over nothing.

Your husband certainly would find your society much more entertaining than that of one of the boys, and as you enjoy being with him it certainly seems that the happiness of the greatest number would be conserved by your following your own plan instead of that of his mother's and your neighbors.

And there is another side to the question, too, that of your keeping yourself your husband's companion instead of being relegated to the back seat like a nursemaid. In my opinion no woman ever makes a greater error than she does when she becomes ALL mother with no thought except for the children and when she devotes herself to her children to the exclusion of her husband. That is the beginning of more alienation between husbands and wives than any other one thing.

So I think a wife is wise when she keeps herself at her husband's side and when she dolls herself up and steps out with him and keeps him feeling that she is a Lady Love instead of just the children's mother.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am married to the best man on earth and I worship him. When I was just a young girl about sixteen years of age I had a sweetheart with whom I acted indiscreetly. Since I have become a mother I carry a great deal over that. I have never done anything else in my life to regret. I have been a model wife and mother, but my conscience tortures me so that I hate myself. What shall I do? Shall I tell my husband or not?

X. Y. M.

Answer—Certainly not. Don't buy your own ease of mind by forever destroying the peace of mind of your husband. He has been good and kind to you. Show your appreciation of that by locking your secret in your heart and never saying one word that will destroy his faith in you.

There is nothing so cowardly as confession. There is nothing so craven for a woman to lay the burden of her sin on the shoulders of an innocent man and wreck his happiness by telling him something in her past that will never disillusion him and kill his faith in her.

Whatever wrong you did in your youth you have atoned for by your repentance. Forget it. Never speak of it. Never think of it. You have earned your right to happiness. Take it. And make up to your husband for the thing he does not know and should never know by your tenderness and goodness to him.

under this direction of the stars. Sensational charges may disturb candidates. It is a warning against the tendency to time against time that will be evident at this time among ambitious men and women. Thought may be self-centred under this planetary government, which makes for thoughtlessness of the rights of the average person.

Women's clubs should benefit from this position of the stars, which presages a season of extraordinary changes and experiences.

According to ancient lore this should be a lucky day for employing men. The stars promise loyalty and integrity.

Because of the aspects of Saturn, astrologers predict a continuation of the international fears that prevent disarmament.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the stars.

Children born on this day probably will be a sign usually succeed by reason of their personal industry.

Herring in Vancouver Island Waters Are Distinct From Other Areas

Female of the Species Said to Grow Faster Than Male

Herring are all herring, but investigations carried on in British Columbia waters show that herring found in one area there may be a population quite distinct from those in other areas.

On to put it in another way: The British Columbia herring fishery—a very important fishery whose product enters into cargo export trade—is centered off the east coast of Vancouver Island, off the island's west coast, and off Prince Rupert district in the north, and evidence gathered by scientific investigators "proves conclusively" that herring of the Prince Rupert area (Jap Inlet and Pearl Harbor) are a population distinct from those of Vancouver Island.

Other evidence "indicates" too, that the fish on the east coast of the island are distinct from those of the other coast, while some of the information "suggests" that herring in each district are more or less isolated from each other and tend to form local populations.

STUDY STATE OF STOCKS

These are interesting points but the investigations have a much more important purpose, of course, than simply to discover things which are interesting to know. The prime object of the work, which has been in progress since 1918.

LONG FLIGHTS ARE HALTED

Heavy Fuel Load Prevented French Planes From Taking Off on Transatlantic Hop

Associated Press
Paris, France, Oct. 18.—Two transatlantic flights, scheduled to have started here to-day, set a new world distance record by flying 6,400 miles to Buenos Aires, were temporarily abandoned when the first of the two planes failed to take off with its heavy load of fuel.

Capt. Louis Mollou and Jean Mercier, pilots of the "plane," said they would delay the attempt until November, when they would be able to take off with a lighter load.

Lucien Rosecroux and Maurice Rosol, pilots of the second plane, also abandoned the attempt when they saw the first fail to get away. They said, however, they might try to get their ship off to-morrow.

The Weather
Daily Bulletin
Furnished by The Meteorological Department

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 18.—The barometer remains high over the province and there has been no change in the weather. The temperature is 54 degrees at 5 p.m. today.

During the 1931-32 herring season almost 4,000 herring from the three main fishing areas were examined, and other samples had been studied in previous seasons. Here are some of the facts which were brought out, as given in a report by Albert L. Tester, one of the scientists concerned:

The average length of female herring was greater than the average length of the males, and, as found by previous investigators, female herring grow at a faster rate than the male fish.

Herring from the Prince Rupert area were characterized by their slow rate of growth as compared with that of herring in the more southern part of the province. Herring from the west coast of Vancouver Island had a rate of growth more rapid than that of herring on the east coast, herring from some areas on each coast of the island, however, showed more rapid growth than fish from certain other areas on the same coast.

WEST COAST FISH BIGGER

On the average, the fish from the west coast were slightly larger than those on the other side of the island, which were approximately the same length as the herring from Prince Rupert.

Comparison of length composition and age composition of catches of herring which were made in several Vancouver Island areas in former years with those of the 1931-32 season "indicates" some diminution of the fishery in these districts since 1918.

The relatively new fishery of Sydney Inlet is characterized by the large average length of the fish in the catch, and by the large percentage of fish in their fourth and fifth years.

"Intensive fishing in a particular district," says the Tester report, "appears to cause a decrease in size range, a decrease in average length, and a decrease in the numbers of older fish in the catch. Whether the fishery, having suffered this decline, again stabilizes itself at a lower level, or, if younger fish, and consequently smaller size, or whether it continues to decline to the point of depletion, remains to be determined."

Charles S. Long Here To-day to Arrange Central Location For Ticket Office

Bookings Out of Victoria For First Sailing of Santa Rosa Already Made, He Says

When the Grace Line service is inaugurated at the end of the year between Victoria and New York the big 17,000-ton Santa Rosa ships will berth at the Rithet docks here, it was announced to-day by Charles S. Long, Pacific northwest passenger agent at Seattle.

The ships to be operated in the new service will be the Santa Rosa, Santa Paula, Santa Lucia and Santa Elena. C. C. Mallory, vice-president and general manager, San Francisco, and John Chapman, vice-president, New York, were recently in Victoria inspecting the ocean dock facilities at Rithet's and Ogden Point.

The decision has been reached, says Mr. Long, to use the Rithet docks. The ships will be centrally located.

Interviewed at the Empress Hotel this morning, Mr. Long said he was in Victoria for the purpose of selecting a location in the city for the passenger office which the Grace Line proposes to open here. He said a separate office would be maintained here, but no announcement has yet been made as to who will be the company's agent in the city. The local office, he added, would be centrally located.

The first ship, the Santa Rosa, will reach Victoria from New York, December 18, and will make her initial sailing out of this port for New York via San Francisco, Los Angeles and Panama, December 20.

BOOKINGS MADE
"A great deal of interest is being evinced in the advent of the Grace ships in the Victoria service and we have already received a number of bookings for the first sailing out of this port," said Mr. Long.

"We anticipate a steady development in this business," he added. Mr. Long stated that Vice-president Mallory planned to make another visit here prior to the inauguration of the Grace Line steamship service to Victoria and Seattle. Mr. Long was recently in San Francisco, where he met Mr. Mallory.
